KING PLEDGES BRITAIN'S HELP TO END WAR

OPENS FIRST PARLIAMENT

Tells of Government's Concern Over Conflicts Raging in Orient and Spain.

By The Associated Press

LONDON Oct 26—King George ... central figure in the splendid ... ages of Britain's ancient ... pledged his government ... attempts to restore peace ... and Spain

At the same time, the monarch ... air raid protection for ... England and forecast more ... England's needy families

He opened his first parliament ... throne days in the somber ... of lords—with Queen Elizabeth in a chair of state at ... and concluded with this ... benediction

"I pray that under the blessing ... Almighty God the outcome of your deliberations may advance the happiness and well ... my people and the peace of the world"

Cites Friendly Relations

Usually the king merely invokes a divine blessing on parliament's "labor" Otherwise, however the speech delivered to the assembled members of parliament in the musty grandeur of the house of lords hewed to the usual formula

It began with "My relations and foreign powers continue to be friendly"

It told the legislators that the church had invited Belgium's King Leopold to visit him in November and Rumania's King Carol this spring

Then it dealt with the spectacle of war on two continents

"My ministers have followed with growing concern the continuance of conflict in Spain It is their aim to do everything which lies in their power to assist toward restoration of peace among the Spanish people.

"They believe a strict application of the international policy of non intervention in Spain will materially contribute to this end," the king declared.

Ponder Far East War

The position in the far east will continue to engage the earnest attention of my government who will persist in their policy of attempting in cooperation with other governments whether members of the League of Nations or not, to mitigate the suffering caused by the conflict and to bring it to a conclusion"

He dealt thus with Britain's war rearmament program

"With full cooperation of my people the work of expanding and equipping my defense forces now is making rapid progress My ministers are anxious that emergency steps be taken to complete measures for the protection of the civilian population against air raids A bill to put the necessary arrangements on a statutory basis will be brought forward for your consideration"

A little less than a year ago King Edward stood on the same dais and opened the parliament his coronation thereafter received his abdication message

Crowds Cheer Ruler

Crowds jammed into parliament square and Whitehall to cheer the passage of the gold and glass state coach bearing King George and Queen Elizabeth Other hundreds jostled outside Buckingham and along the route

The majesties smiled and bowed repeated from the windows of their coach. A diamond diadem glittered from Elizabeth's head She wore a white fur cloak and a gown of regal gold lame The king was bareheaded during the procession. He wore the scarlet and gold uniform of a field marshal with the dark green cape of tinsle across his tunic.

Meanwhile, Britain was bracing herself to offer an 11th-hour peace plan in the hope of saving what remained of the non-intervention agreement to keep the war out of Spain

The future of the plan remained obscure and in the offing was the reassembling of the non-intervention subcommittee of the league of nations nations.

The Y. M. C. A. campaign for $12,450 ended last night $1,760 67 short of the goal, but a small organization of Y workers immediately mapped plans to press forward in an effort to put the drive over the top within the next few weeks

The campaign proper, in which 114 workers were enlisted, officially closed when reports of 213 pledges totaling $1,318 83 were turned in at a dinner meeting last night at the Y These brought the totals for the drive which started Monday, Oct 18, to 1,289 pledges amounting to $10,689 33

Law Nabs Seven Pranksters Twice Within An Hour

Seven East Side boys, all about 15 years of age, became enmeshed in the long arms of the law last night and within the space of less than an hour had become second offenders.

The group was taken into custody when officers answered a call to the East Side on the report that Hallowe'en pranksters were tying down automobile horns. Juvenile Judge Oscar Gast happened to be at the police station when the boys were brought in. They were lectured on the error of their ways and told sternly that if they went directly to their homes they would be released.

The boys left the police station and on the trek homeward couldn't resist the temptation of perpetrating another prank. They were picked up the second time by officers, who reported they were shoving some one's automobile from a parking place into a front lawn. After the second trip to the police station they were released to their parents.

All were ordered to appear again before Juvenile Judge Gast today after school.

MAN ARRESTED HERE DENIES GUILT IN COURT

Suspect Held on Counterfeit Charge Pleads Innocent at Toledo.

BOUND TO GRAND JURY

Five More Bills Found in Screen at Sewage Disposal Plant.

Samuel Langman, 26, of Brooklyn, N. Y., arrested here early Sunday morning by Marion police after they uncovered a cache of $1,920 in bogus notes, pleaded not guilty to possession and distribution of counterfeit money today at his arraignment before John Budd United States commissioner at Toledo

He was bound over to the federal grand jury and placed under $10,000 bond, according to The Associated Press report Police Chief William E Marks, Police Captain Ora DeWees, who arrested Langman at an uptown restaurant Homer Hull of 120 Greenwood street, Harold Merchant of 660 East Center street and Merle Mason of 653 East Center street, were among the eight persons who testified at the arraignment.

More Bills Found

Five more $20 bills were found by workmen who were screening sewage at the disposal plant yesterday afternoon and last night, bringing the total of the recovered currency to 106 bills or $2,120 Screening of the sewage was to be discontinued today, authorities said Previously three of the bills had been found at the disposal plant and two others at a sewer manhole at Blaine avenue and Center street.

Langman's arrest here Sunday morning came through an unusual set of circumstances which began when he and a companion were alleged to have passed a counterfeit $20 bill at the Texaco service station at Greenwood and Center streets Harold J. Merchant, the attendant who received the bill, was among those called to Toledo to testify.

Through a "hunch" Homer Hull, who happened to be in the service station when the two men appeared, brought police into the investigation. Later while Hull was relating the incident to Police Captain DeWees at the Midway restaurant, one of the pair entered

Finds Cache of Bills

DeWees arrested the man who gave his name as Langman, after watching the suspect's nervous movements and finding $1,920 of the counterfeit bills hidden in the flush tank of a toilet in the rest room An attempt had been made to dispose of the bills by flushing them into the sewer, but failed when part of them apparently clogged the outlet.

Meanwhile Ohio authorities and police officers throughout the east are continuing their search for Langman's companion who escaped the initial dragnet laid down for his capture. When last seen the man, about 37 years old and wearing a brown jacket, hat, shoes and dark trousers, was driving a late model coupe bearing New Jersey license plates.

COLUMBUS BARBER ON TRIAL IN SLAYING

Faces Charge of Killing His Wife, Sister of Two Marion Men.

The husband of Mrs. Ruth Davis, a Columbus woman and sister of two Marion county men, testified in his second degree murder trial in common pleas court at Columbus today that a shotgun blast which killed his wife last July 6 was discharged accidentally. The Associated Press reported.

The accused man, Ray Davis, 41-year-old barber, told of the shooting in these words. "I started into the barber shop (connected with the Davis residence) going through the hall, but a shotgun was sticking out. I asked her (Mrs. Davis) 'What's that gun doing here" and she said, 'Leave that gun alone.' I picked it up, looking at it to see whose gun it was. I 'broke' it to see whether it was loaded and it exploded in my hand."

Mrs. Davis was a sister of Frank Watt of five miles west of Marion and Boyd Watt of Marion, both Erie railroad workers. Mrs. Davis had visited at the Watt home shortly before she was killed.

Last Defense Witness

Davis was the last witness in his defense. The case was expected to go to a jury of seven women and five men late this afternoon.

Davis testified the shooting occurred upon his return from Marysville where he had paid a traffic violation fine for his son, Harley, 18, who was working near Marysville at that time.

Tracing his actions from the time he and his son left Marysville and returned to the Davis home, Davis said he and his son had carried a pint of liquor on the trip and that he took three

600 Here For Opening of State Farm Union's 4th Annual Convention

Sessions Get Under Way This Morning with Addresses of Welcome by Mayor Smith and R. K. Ruppart; Criticism of New Deal Policies Seen.

More than 600 delegates and guests were present this morning for the opening session of the fourth annual convention of the Ohio division of the Farmers' Educational and Cooperative Union of American being held at The Star auditorium. The attendance was expected to swell this afternoon and tomorrow as the sessions get well under way, officials said

This morning's session of the militant agricultural organization was devoted to reports of state officers and to addresses of welcome by Mayor Frederick C. Smith, a member of Pleasant township local No 33, Ralph K. Ruppart, secretary of the Marion Central Labor union, and W D Brown, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and responses by officials of the Union.

Telegrams were received from E H. Everson of St Charles, S. D., national president of the Union, stating he will arrive tonight for an address tomorrow morning, and also from the California division of the Union, wishing success.

Mayor Smith was introduced by G. S. Hagens of near Urbana, state president. He told the delegates he has instructed the police to observe all Union stickers on automobiles After welcoming the delegates and guests, he launched into a plea for the Union to abolish politics from its ranks

He said he blames political demagogues for the sorry plight of the farmer. "I'm not blaming any particular party," he said, "because one is just as corrupt as the other. But unless we conquer politics, it will conquer us."

Vice President Responds

Maurice Bair of Gibsonburg, state vice president, responded to the mayor's welcome and reassured Dr. Smith that the Union is working hand in hand with people in the cities and towns. He said that the Union is organized for exactly the same purpose as labor unions—to secure for the farmer a rightful share of the national wealth.

Mr. Ruppart brought the welcome of Marion working men and stated that the ideals of labor are definitely aligned with those of the farmer. He assailed efforts which he said have been made to show that farmers and working men are opposed to each other.

The answer to Mr. Ruppart's address was given by Raymond South of near West Liberty, member of the state board of directors.

The opening address of Mr. Hagans was also a feature of the morning's session. He urged the Union to follow more closely than ever the teachings of the late John A. Simpson of Oklahoma, former national president of the Union and based his talk on those teachings.

Of depressions he said: "To try to bring back prosperity without removing the cause is futile. The nation has been fighting results of a cause instead of getting to the

LEDGER AND ITS FIGURES SENT CAPONE TO PRISON

Loose Leaf Book Used as Paperweight Found To Contain Accounts from Gambling Place.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 26—Dwight H. Green, former U. S. district attorney, told today "for the first time the inside story of Al Capone" and how a shabby loose-leaf ledger helped send him to Alcatraz.

C. I. O. ASKS TO SET UP ITS OWN SELF RULED UNIONS WITHIN A. F. L.

Peace Proposal Demands Autonomy To Organize Main Mass Production Plants Horizontally.

CONVENTION ASKED

All Rebel Organizations Would Join New A.F.L. Branch But Make Own Rules, Elect Officers.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct 26—The Committee for Industrial Organization submitted a three-point peace plan today to the American Federation of Labor at their joint peace conference

A. C.I.O. leader said the basis for reconciliation probably would give John L. Lewis control of the federation.

The proposal called for establishment of an "autonomous" department within the A.F.L. to include industrial unions in the mass production, marine, public utilities, service and basic fabricating industries.

Workers in these industries would be organized only on an industrial basis, as opposed to the traditional craft union organization policy of the A.F.L.

Convention Requested

The proposal also called for a national convention of all A.F.L. and C.I.O unions to ratify the agreement and to work out "necessary rules and regulations to effectuate" it.

All the national and local unions now affiliated with the C.I.O. would be affiliated with the new A.F.L. department, under the plan.

These unions would adopt their own departmental constitutions and elect their own officers.

The department, to be known as the C.I.O. would have complete authority in handling the organization of workers in the industries named.

Deal with A. F. L. Trio

The C.I.O submitted its proposal at the start of the third session of the conference after agreeing to deal with the A.F.L.'s three-man peace committee headed by George M. Harrison, president of the railway clerks.

The A.F.L. committee, without an immediate answer to the C.I.O. proposal, announced shortly after the meeting recessed that it "anticipated" it would be prepared to reply tomorrow when the session is resumed.

On a basis of membership claimed for the rival organizations, the C.I.O. would have 3,718,000 members in the federation, compared with approximately 3,200,000 workers the federation now claims.

"This seems to us to be a case where we would control the Federation by sheer strength of numbers," said Lee Pressman, C.I.O. general counsel.

Say It's Up To A.F.L.

"We think this proposal puts final settlement of the issue up to the other side. The federation conferees can not afford to accept or reject our offer immediately."

William Green, federation president, could not be reached immediately for comment. His associates said he probably would make no statement until after he had dis-

Lack of Divorce Is Only Obstacle To This Marriage

When Kipling wrote those memorable lines—"East is East and West is West, and never the twain shall meet," he probably had no thought of an incident that would arise many years later in the marriage license bureau of Marion county probate court However, clerks in the court office yesterday applied his principle just the same.

The incident arose when a colored son of Alabama and a 16-year-old Marion girl of the same race applied at the marriage license bureau for permission to wed.

The court clerk had a little difficulty in clearing up the oriental-occidental angles of the situation despite a badge, purporting to be the emblem of a Moorish secret society and as large as a sunflower, which the would-be bridegroom wore under his coat. However, he might have overlooked this matter had not the wearer of the badge revealed in the course of questioning that he did not have a divorce from his former wife, now living in Louisiana, and, according to his word, remarried.

FIELD TRIAL PLANS MADE

Central Ohio Event Scheduled Near Harpster Saturday and Sunday.

Plans are being completed to hold the annual fall field trials of the Central Ohio Field Trial club, Saturday and Sunday, on a 2,500-acre tract near Harpster. O. H Neimeyer of Prospect, state game protector, was in Columbus today going over final arrangements with members of the organization.

Neimeyer reported that tomorrow efforts will be turned to solving the problem of housing the dogs which will run in the trials and also on checking the number of horses available for members, judges and spectators. Friday officials will go over the courses which will be run in order to lay out the available ground

The landowners whose permission has been obtained for use of the 2,500 acres are Davids Sears of Harpster, Leonard Swavel, Harry Dillon and Paul Myers, all of the Harpster vicinity. The meet is to be held about two and one-half miles southwest of Harpster on the county line road. Spectators are invited, but officials stressed that those who attend at such events are always mounted on horseback in order to follow the dogs as they range through the country in pursuit of birds.

Between 100 and 125 bird dogs, all pointers and setters valued at no less than $250 each, are expected to be brought here for the two-day event. The field club has 52 members, scattered throughout several counties, including Marion. The dogs, which will participate for prize money in four different events, have been trained on quail last winter in the south and this summer have been training in Canada on prairie chicken, officials said.

Doubt Regarding Priest's Future Activities Remain Following Sale.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Oct 26—Uncertainties over Father Charles E. Coughlin's place as a commentator on public affairs, either by voice or with pen, grew today following the sale of his weekly paper.

A movement to urge the Vatican and the archbishop of Detroit to prevail on Father Coughlin to resume radio broadcasts and writings was announced almost simultaneously with the paper's sale.

The sale of "Social Justice," publication of the National Union for Social Justice, to an allied organization headed by Walter Baertschi of Toledo, and creation of the "committee of one million Christians" to work in Father Coughlin's behalf both were announced yesterday:

A statement to "explain" the sale was being prepared today by Father Coughlin's personal attorney, Prewitt Semmes, while Baertschi, new editor and publisher, planned a transfer of editorial activities from Royal Oak, home of the priest's parish.

CARS DAMAGED IN 2 COLLISIONS HERE

Marion, Mt. Gilead and Galion Machines Involved in Accidents.

Cars driven by Alfred Davis of 322 Park boulevard and T. J. drinks on the way to Columbus. "I wasn't drunk but I don't say I couldn't feel what I had been drinking," Davis testified.

He said upon his arrival home he found his wife in the kitchen. He said she didn't greet him in the usual manner but said, "There've been a million people at the door."

Davis said he replied, "Okay. Get something on the table to eat. I'm hungry." Then he said he saw the gun and his conversation with his wife regarding it and the accidental shooting followed.

Saw Wife Fall

He said he saw "fire" fly from the end of the gun. "I saw my wife standing straight. She weaved and I said something to her and started toward her. Before I got to her she fell to the kitchen floor. I threw the gun down and I stooped down over her. Blood started to run. I can't say just what I did then."

Albert Crabtree of Columbus, an earlier witness, who had accompanied Davis to Marysville before the shooting, said Davis had come to his home after the shooting and said, "Ruth has shot herself."

Mrs. Lillie McKinneu, who lived to the rear of the Davis home, said she heard the shot and Mrs. Davis calling, "please come and help me."

Relatives of the slain woman were among the witnesses who testified in behalf of Davis as he opened his defense of the trial. Mrs. William Amsley of Belle Center, a sister of Mrs. Davis, and Mrs. Amsley's daughter, Ruth, testified they never heard of any trouble between Davis and his wife.

The last prosecution witness was Police Sgt. C. C. Cole who quoted Davis as first having denied the shooting and later explained he did it "to protect himself." Cole said Davis had pleaded guilty to the second degree charge in police court.

DETROIT MAN HELD ON TRAFFIC CHARGE

Roger Mann, 21, of Detroit, Mich., was arrested yesterday by state highway patrolmen on state route 23 six miles north of Marion on a charge of obstructing traffic. Mann, patrolmen said, left his car blocking a portion of the highway when it had a flat tire. He refused the request of members of a highway crew, who were painting center lines on the road, to move the car from the lane of traffic.

Mann was brought here by patrolmen and at a municipal court arraignment yesterday afternoon, pleaded not guilty. His hearing was set for Monday, Nov. 1 at 3 p. m. He is being held at the city prison today upon failure to furnish bond for his appearance.

root of the matter. Why can't the nation see our program? Politics is what is keeping us from changing conditions."

Draws Comparison

He compared the present day United States with other great nations in history with the ominous words "When there has been too much concentration of wealth in the hands of a few, them nations have fallen. History bears me out. And we in America are bordering dangerously on a parallel to these ancient nations."

He accused the government of disseminating misinformation to the public through a vast system of propaganda centering about county agricultural agents "We are told there are vast surpluses of farm products," Mr. Hagans said. "Where are they?"

In closing he invited all the delegates and guests to participate in the parade which will be held tonight at 7 o'clock. It will form at Center and Greenwood streets and move west on Center street to Park boulevard Several floats have been prepared, including one by the Pleasant township local.

Mr. Hagans' report to the convention as president was brief. It was followed by the report of the vice president.

The secretary-treasurer, F. R. Lenox of Fletcher reported an increase in membership for the past year, bringing the total in Ohio now to 2,945 paid and 3,047 honorary in approximately 90 locals There are about 6,000 voting members, including children over 16. He urged the new state board of directors, to be elected here tomorrow, to devote their attention to increasing membership, stating that legislative power disappears without members.

The credentials committee reported 189 delegates out of a possible 244 were seated as compared with 187 at Lima last year.

Committees Named

Committees appointed by President Hagans this morning are:

Order of business, Dennis Culley, J. W. Dunham and Albert Verhoft, resolutions, Harry Warner, Mrs Edwin Bredehoft, Joseph Clarke, John Wolfe, John Krembrink, Mrs. C. K. Showers and Ed Cyz, constitution, H. A. Twining, John Stone, E. J. Knight, J. C. Cooper and Russell Kiko, and good of the order, Charles Few, C. D. Scherer, J. R Damschioder, Earl Gill and Ed Brogaia.

Mr. Hagans said the convention probably will take up several aspects of the new deal farm program, actual and proposed. The Union is strictly opposed to the administration's program of "planned scarcity" and also to its farm tenancy program, he said

"Probably some pretty warm resolutions against the soil conservation program which replaced the triple A will come out of this convention," he said "As for the farm tenancy bill, as it stands now it can help only about one farmer in a county If they tried to help all the tenant farmers under that plan it would bankrupt the nation."

Musical Program

This afternoon the program was to include music by the Ohio Corn Crackers, a musical organization from the Gibsonburg Local No. 28, the report of the committee on order of business, music by the Hawaiians, orchestra from Oak Harbor Local No. 31; report of the committee on the good of the order; music by the Imbrock brothers of Okolona Local No. 32; report of the committee on constitution and by-laws.

Tonight's program will be featured by an address on "Farmers Washington Service" by Edward E Kennedy of Washington, legislative counsel for the national Farmers' Union and former national secretary of the Union The Washington Service is a committee set up by the Union's state organizations to wage the fight for a proper legislative program in Washington.

Also tonight beginning at 8 o'clock will be music by the Levering family orchestra from Troy Local No. 67; a brief talk by Mr. Hagans, music by the St Paris Juniors from Local No 5, music by the Ohio Corn Crackers; songs by the Novelty Blue and White Four from Urbana Township Local No. 10; a playlet, "The Train to Mamo," by members of the Gibsonburg Local No. 28.

Tomorrow will bring resumption of business at 9 o'clock with report of the credentials committee, of the state purchasing agent, H. S. Atchinson of Salem, Mich., of the Farmers' Union Mutual Casualty Co., on junior work by Mrs. Marguerite Bredehoft, state junior chairman, and the address by Mr Everson.

Session Closed

The afternoon session beginning at 1:30 will be closed to the public. The resolutions will be adopted and officers elected at that time. If business is completed the meeting will adjourn tomorrow afternoon, but it may be necessary to continue the session until evening, Mr. Hagans said

The Farmers' Union was founded in September, 1902, in Ramos county, Texas, by a group of five farmers called by one Newt Gresham, credited with being the founder. The Golden Rule was adopted as the foundation of the organization and has been adhered to ever since, Mr. Hagans said. The Union spread gradually throughout the country. The Ohio division was organized in January, 1933, and has steadily progressed This is the fourth annual convention of the group.

The Union is the only farm organization which admits to membership only farmers or persons directly interested in the welfare of the farmer. Other persons privileged are country doctors, school teachers and ministers. Lawyers and bankers are barred from joining no matter how much land they own, Mr. Hagans said.

One of the prime planks in the Union platform is that farmers receive for their products more than the cost of production. They recognize that production of food is a main necessity and as such should be properly compensated, Mr. Hagans commented.

Type of Organization

The Union is a non-profit, non-sectarian, non-partisan organization composed of farmers and dedicated to their betterment, Mr. Hagans defined concisely.

The program of the Union in brief is to secure equity, establish justice; to discourage credit and the mortgage system, to assist members in cooperative buying and selling, to develop scientific farming, to educate farmers in marketing and domestic economy, to systematize production and distribution, to eliminate gambling in farm products by the board of trade, exchanges and speculators; to bring farming to a level with other industries; farm product prices, to strive for to obtain profitable and uniform harmony among all classes.

FORMALITY GONE FOR THE WINDSORS

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Oct. 26 — Americans who meet the Duke of Windsor on his forthcoming trip to the United States need have no worries about royal ritual—the strict etiquette that once surrounded Great Britain's former monarch

Since Edward of Windsor abandoned his crown and scepter to become a duke he also has dropped all semblance of the old court ceremony.

In his new life, free for the first time from official duties, there remains some stiff formality on the part of those who surround the duke, but it is entirely self-imposed. Windsor himself has become completely informal.

ROBBER BELIEVED BIRD GANG MEMBER

Caught in Philadelphia Where Widmer Was Nabbed 10 Days Ago.

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 25—Capt. James P. Ryan, of the detective bureau, said today he was "certain that a man who held up a cashier's office at the John Wanamaker department store and who seriously wounded a customer as he fled with $1,240, "belongs to the Bird gang."

The holdup man was trapped in a revolving door of a hotel two blocks from the store, yesterday. Patrolman John McSparron made the capture. He said he found a pistol and $1,240 on the man who identified himself as A. W. Gregg of Milwaukee, Wis.

Ryan declined to say whether Gregg might be Charles or Frank Bird, who with Charles Widmer, fled east after breaking out of jail at Cleveland, O., where they were awaiting trial on bank robbery charges Widmer was captured here 10 days ago, and the Bird brothers were the objects of a citywide search.

Ryan said Gregg's car found in a parkling lot, carried Ohio license tags.

Max Chavitz, of the Philadelphia office of the federal bureau of investigation, after examining Gregg's fingerprints said.

"It is close to that of Frank Bird, but it is not identical.

"There might, of course, be some errors," the F. B. I. said They would not step into the case unless asked to do so

C. Morgan Knight, 28, shot in the abdomen as he struggled with Gregg, was in a serious condition today.

Knight identified Gregg as his assailant, police said.

cussed the matter with the federation's three-man delegation to the conference.

The C. I. O. proposal would keep such powerful craft unions as the machinists and electricians out of such industries as steel, automobiles and radios. The C. I. O. also would require the A. F. L. to turn over to its C. I. O. department control of dozens of small unions

The C I O. department would stand alongside three other departments that the A.F.L. now has but would have far greater authority and independence. The other departments were organized by the building trades, metal trades, and railway trades to promote their common interests.

Doubt A.F.L. Acceptance

Although the A F L. reaction was not made known immediately, the federation's general sentiment, as expressed at the recent Denver convention made unqualified acceptance appear improbable.

Federation leaders, in their private conversations in Denver, said they would insist that the craft unions retain their A.F.L. right to enroll highly skilled workers no matter where employed.

Headed by Philip Murray, vice president of the United Mine Workers, the C I O peace committee of 10 entered the meeting yesterday with a proposal that the conference be enlarged to 100 members from each side.

George M. Harrison's A F L. committee of three replied that it had full authority to negotiate a settlement but no authority to increase its size. Getting an authorization for an increase, the A F L. committee said, might hold up the conference a long time.

Although Murray said the conference of 13 was not as representative of affected unions as it might be, he conceded the point and agreed to proceed.

The A.F.L. committee then asked the C I O. for a list of its 3 national unions and 605 local unions The C.I O countered with a request for a list of all the new unions which the federation has organized since the split.

Because neither committee had such a list at hand, the conference recessed for the day.

Bishops Ponder Move To Quit Buckeye Circuit

Future Athletic Policies To Be Discussed at Alumni Parley Saturday.

By The Associated Press

DELAWARE, O., Oct. 26—Ohio Wesleyan university's student newspaper, The Transcript, threw into the open today a discussion of the possibility that the Battling Bishops might drop out of the Buckeye Athletic conference as the result of a second disastrous football season.

Future athletic policies of the university are to be debated by the Alumni "W" association here Saturday.

"Should Ohio Wesleyan drop out of the Buckeye conference?" inquired Robert Gaither of Union, O., editor of The Transcript, in an editorial today.

"It is unpleasant to think that the university should voluntarily step out of the traditional competition to join the large but mediocre Ohio conference, yet this may be the main topic of discussion at the meeting of the Alumni 'W' clan following the homecoming game Saturday

"The Battling Bishops in the past have gained a name for themselves as a team with the spirit and grit that not only can win games but makes men.

"Ohio Wesleyan football teams have never been 'bought' players They have been comprised of well-rounded students. Coach George Gauthier, the 'little G' is justly proud of the records of his varsity graduates But we cannot deny that losing teams do not keep the boxoffice busy."

The editorial went on to suggest that Wesleyan remain in the Buckeye if possible, but presented the likelihood of action to the contrary.

Gauthier, coach for 17 years at the Methodist school, has turned out many a winning team in the past, but last year his boys won only one game, tied two and lost six to end up at the bottom of the strong, compact Buckeye circuit, which also includes Dayton, Marshal, Ohio U., Miami and Cincinnati.

Thus far this season, the Bishops have lost four games and won one, the victory coming last Saturday at the expense of little Rollins college from Florida.

Informed persons at the university said the question of possible admission to the 10-team Ohio conference had not been broached because Buckeye games for 1938 already are scheduled and must be played. Thus, any change could not be effective before 1939.

The athletic board is due to meet in November however, in advance of the Buckeye's December session in Columbus, and any decision was expected to be made at that time Schedules for the following two years are to be arranged at the Columbus gathering

It was pointed out that the Alumni "W" association, headed by Branch Rickey of the St Louis Cardinals and made up of athletic letter men of past years, would have no official part in any decision concerning a conference change, but that its recommendations always received serious consideration of the athletic board.

Don Watkins, the association's secretary, in calling Saturday's session, announced it as for the purpose of discussing athletic policies.

ACCIDENT SPILLS FISH IN STREET

Fresh fish, nearly a hundred pounds of them, were scattered over the street at the intersection of State and Pleasant streets this morning about 8:15 o'clock when cars driven by W. E Sargent of North State street and Fred Ellery of Curtis court figured in a collision, according to a report of police.

The fish had been in a wooden container in the rear of Mr. Sargent's passenger car and the impact which damaged the car door, broke off a wheel and mashed the fenders and radiator, sent most of them slithering across the brick pavement. Mr. Sargent was driving south on State street and Ellery was traveling east on Pleasant street, officers said. The front fender and axle of Ellery's car were also damaged, it was reported.

HOOVER AND LANDON IN SPOTLIGHT TODAY

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct 26 — Both Herbert Hoover and Alf M. Landon, reported rivals for Republican leadership, were in the political spotlight today.

Landon was conferring in Topeka Kans., with John Hamilton, Republican national chairman. Hoover will deliver a nationwide radio speech from Boston at 9 p. m., eastern standard time.

Political observers connected both events with the meeting of the Republican national committee in Chicago next week to consider holding a 1938 Republican convention. The proposal has aroused widespread discussion within party ranks.

Hoover has been a leader in the movement for such a convention, which he suggested should adopt a "declaration of fundamental convictions."

Landon, publicly uncommitted, has been reported cool toward the idea, as have several of the party's congressional leaders.

peared during the raid and identified himself as owner of the place.

It was not until a bank employe recalled that a man named Fred Rees was accustomed to cash checks at his bank that the U S. agents found a foothold

Rees located in Los Angeles, directed the agents to a man named Shumway, who revealed that each column in the ledger represented daily net receipts of every game operated at the smoke shop.

With that and other links of evidence, the government hailed Capone into court Capone promptly tried to fix the jury, Green said

"We learned Capone had a list of jurors," Green recalled, and I informed Judge Wilkerson of this fact."

On the day of the trial, jurymen called for Judge Wilkerson's court were transferred and other veniremen were brought in.

"Need I say it was amusing," Green smiled. "to see the look of perlexity on the face of Capone?"

Green praised the press as one of the most effective weapons in smashing hoodlums by exposing their activities.

Federal Authorities To Take Bank Robber to Alcatraz Island.

By The Associated Press

Federal authorities said Widmer, who pleaded guilty, would be taken at once to Alcatraz island, the west coast prison for desperate criminals.

COUNCIL PROVIDES FUNDS FOR NEW TRAFFIC LIGHTS

Transfer Made for Installation at Four or Five Street Intersections To Be Designated Later.

City council, at a regular meeting last night, made a transfer of funds to make money available for purchase of "four or five" traffic lights but deferred action on the location of lights to the next meeting.

W. M. Fabian, chairman of the police committee, who reported at the last meeting the committee had a number of locations in mind for lights, said he wished to wait to the next meeting before giving a report.

The money for lights was made available in the gasoline tax fund by shifting $350 from the item for labor to the account for purchase of traffic lights.

Lights Ordered

Council authorized the Marion-Reserve Power Co. to install three street lights on Osgood street, two on Smith street and one each on Boone avenue and Irey avenue. These complied with requests previously made to council, and the installations were authorized after the street lighting committee investigated the requests and approved them.

An additional appropriation of $3,131.26 was made in the garbage department after Safety-Service Director John V. Ruth reported he had an unappropriated balance of $5,836 in the fund and wished to use $3,131.26 to pay a number of 1936 bills against the department for a number of items including gasoline and truck maintenance. He said the department is in good financial condition to permit payment of the bills without interfering with operations. Councilmen Fabian and Williams voted against the measure after Williams' recommendation that the matter be referred to the finance committee was ignored.

Barber Ordinance Read

A proposed ordinance which would require barbers to obtain annual licenses at a fee of $2 and make it a misdemeanor for them to operate before 8 a. m. or after 6 p. m. on all week-days excepting Saturday when the closing time would be 9 p. m. was referred to the ordinance and franchise committee and the police committee. It was submitted by Donald Tonguette, who several months ago made a plea to council that it be adopted. It was turned down when previously submitted.

A communication from City Auditor J. L. Landes stating additional appropriations are needed for some city salary accounts to finish the year was referred to the finance committee. The auditor said the amounts needed are $300 for the municipal judge, $270 for the municipal court clerk, $270 for the municipal court bailiff, $278.38 for the deputy clerk in the municipal court, $315 for the city solicitor, $112.50 for the treasurer and $270 for the auditor. Officials said these amounts represent the difference between full salaries for these officials and the 15 per cent pay cuts which were contemplated when appropriations for the year were made.

A complaint made by George W. Smith of 267 Leader street about employes of the Alloy Cast Steel Co. and the General Excavator Co. using an alley beside his residence in going to and from work was referred to the street and alley committee for investigation.

City Clerk Harry Brookshire reported George Wright had suggested longer intervals between changes of traffic lights be made by council. The report was turned over to the police committee.

Ohio State Confident of Victory Over Chicag

Presidents Drill Nightly for N. C. O. Tilt Saturday

Lumbering up exercises for the athletes who played in the Ashland game and a brief scrimmage session for the remaining members of the squad comprised last night's workout of the Harding High gridiron aggregation. The team was scheduled to meet every night this week, including Friday, for practice sessions prior to the North Central Ohio conference game at Shelby, Saturday afternoon.

A minor leg injury kept Raymond Hudson, end, on the sidelines last night, but with that exception the team came through the clash with the Hilltoppers in fairly good condition. Hudson is expected to be in form to return to the starting line-up against Shelby and again the team will be in tip-top shape to invade a foreign field.

Practices this week will be devoted largely to polishing offense, a study and rundown of defense and a brief scrimmage session for the first team. The other squads will be given over to the perfecting of the rudiments preparatory to the opening game of the season. It is the hope of Coach Harding to have the first-team backfield and line working together with clock-like precision.

The trip to Shelby will be the first game into the North Central Ohio conference circuit for the Presidents. The game is the opening one for the conference schedule which will find Mansfield coming to Galion the following week and entertaining Mt. Vernon and Bucyrus on successive Fridays at Harding stadium. All of the remaining games are league contests. The only other loop contest this week will find Ashland at Mt. Vernon Friday night.

Spencer Defeats Kruger After 6-Man Battle Royal

Boston's Jimmy Spencer became the No. 1 mean man of the six husky warriors who took part in the featured battle royal on last night's grapple card at the Marion Steam Shovel arena as he waded to the top spot by beating Fritz Kruger of Germany in the final 30-minute scrap. Jackie "Chin Sp.n" Nichols of West Palm Beach, Fla., and Lefty Pacer of New York City, took one fall each to battle to a draw in the 45-minute meeting of the gang fight semi-finalists.

The 12-minute battle royal was packed with action from the start with wrestlers carrying the battle to the feet of ringside spectators. With each man selecting his own opponent, or landing windmill blows on anyone within reach, the 22-year-old youngster, Buddy Knox was the first to go down for the count. Taking Kruger's wild left hook directly on the button, Knox went down and was pinned by Spencer, who got an assist from the four other battle royalists.

LaCrosse Second Man Down

The usual fall was scored in five minutes and in the second, which went but 69 seconds, Boston's husky ex-gob, Gil LaCrosse, took the count. Nichols got credit for the punch that sent the barrel-chested sailor to the canvas and the pile-up that pinned his shoulders looked like a plunge in football that was smothered as it hit the line. LaCrosse and Knox, although eliminated, carried on the battle from outside the ring until they were not too quietly escorted to the dressing room.

Kruger and Spencer, the rough and tough tumblers, paired against Nichols and Pacer in the succeeding round and the gang fight was on even terms until Nichols missed a shoulder dive and went through the ropes. Seizing the opportunity Spencer floored the New Yorker and Kruger helped him pin Spencer's shoulders. The fall went three minutes and put Nichols behind the eight-ball when he faced the pair of battlers single-handed. By clever headwork the Floridan managed to stay four minutes against the pair of aggressors but finally fell prey to the onslaught as Kruger and Spencer alternated in keeping Referee Verne Clark at bay.

Nichols and Pacer, returning for the semi-final, showed plenty of clean and aggressive wrestling, with the New Yorker taking the initial fall in 24 minutes and Nichols coming back to win the second in 11½ minutes. For the duration of the scrap the grapplers were in the center of the mat, exchanging tough arm, head and body holds that had Clark busy watching for the fall Pacer won with a series of shoulder butts and head slams, topped off with an airplane spin and slam. He became the victim of the Floridan's deadly chin spin in the second round that brought the fight to a draw.

Referee Floors Spencer

A blood-thirsty crowd got its fill in the main event that found Boston's Spencer winning over Kruger. The Bostonian got into trouble with the referee early in the first round and on several occasions turned his entire efforts on mauling the official. Clark, well able to take care of himself, floored Spencer repeatedly and would have been in line for an assist in the event of a possible Kruger victory. After being driven to the ropes by Clark when he refused to break clean, Spencer dived in to get a crab hold and score the first fall at the end of seven minutes.

Kruger left fly a barrage of left jabs, followed them with a chest punt and wound up the second round with a series of full height body slams to win at the end of three minutes. The combatants weren't pulling any of their punches in the deciding round but it took a body blow to give Spencer the winning advantage over Kruger. The Bostonian rang down the curtain on the ring activity by pinning Kruger with a shoulder press at the end of four minutes. Disgruntled fans milled about the ringside as the final fall was scored and witnessed a heated word-battle by the rough treatment he received at the hands of Spencer and Kruger in the battle royal elimination, challenged the winner to meet him in a 30-minute scrap.

GRID SPOTLIGHT ON MINNESOTA-IRISH CONTEST SATURDAY

National Prestige of Both Teams at Stake; Northwestern To Meet Wisconsin.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 26—Minnesota and Notre Dame will be fighting Saturday for the championship of the mid-west.

Their battle at Minneapolis expected to attract 61,000 spectators, may be one of the most stubborn fought games of the season for neither would stoop to the tricks of both elevens to regain national prestige lost through slow starts this year.

Both teams are on the victory trail, Minnesota as a result of its decisive win over Michigan and Notre Dame through its fighting, last period conquest of Navy. Minnesota, which went through a long drill featured by passing and punting formations yesterday, is favored to win. The Irish are in a position to upset the apple, and the performance of Jack McCarthy and Bunny McCormack against Navy undoubtedly is causing Bernie Bierman of the Gophers plenty of worry.

Ranking next to the Irish-Gopher battle in interest will be the Northwestern-Wisconsin clash at Madison. The Wildcats will be out to take their defeat by Ohio State out on the Badgers, but Wisconsin threw a scare into the Lynn Waldorf team last year and may do it again. Northwestern studied movies of its game with the Buckeyes yesterday as Wisconsin worked on new pass plays.

Michigan sought more power on offense in preparation for Illinois. Dave Strong, former Illinois quarterback now a Michigan student, paced the freshmen to a 19 to 7 victory over the Wolverine second and third string teams. Illinois looked good on offense but weak defensively. Jay Wardley, who will start at a halfback post against Michigan, was impressive both as a passer and runner.

Iowa went through a listless drill and Purdue, which will face the Hawkeyes at LaFayette, tried out new plays. Don Powell and Bob Vyverberg both out of action because of injuries, were back in uniform.

Ohio State's reserves ran through a series of Chicago plays in a short session, with every one from Coach Francis Schmidt on down confident of victory over the Maroons. Chicago worked on defense.

Coach Bo McMillin, downcast because of the number of injured men on his squad, looked at a schedule of remaining games for his Hoosiers and bluntly remarked: "Another Indiana victory this season will be an "upset." Indiana meets Nebraska Saturday.

Bucks No. 8 in Grid List for Week

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 — California's Golden Bears, by a landslide vote of endorsement among the country's newspaper experts, remain the nation's No. 1 college football team for the second successive week.

Ohio State, a newcomer in the ranks of the "high ten" in the poll is in eighth place for the week.

The first scheduled game for the school is Nov. 4 with Radnor, the county competition opening Nov. 12. He prefers the Friday night game be away from home and stated that a return game can be arranged later in the season.

American League Stars of 1937

BY BURNLEY

LOOKING over the final baseball statistics for 1937, we find that Charley Gehringer of Detroit is the American League batting king, and Johnny Allen of Cleveland tops the moundsmen in won and lost percentage.

Topping both leagues in home runs is the young man who undoubtedly ranks as the standout ball player of 1937—Joe Di Maggio of the Yanks.

In this story we consider the achievements of the American Leaguers only. After what happened to the Giants in the World Series, and the Cubs (as usual) in the Chicago city series, maybe the National League should be "included out" of the major circuits, anyhow.

Every one was happy to see the brilliant Charley Gehringer finally come into his own as batting champion. The Gray Ghost of Detroit, one of the greatest players of this or any other day, is so unobtrusive and mechanically efficient that he never receives the attention he deserves. Winning the batting laurels serves to focus the spotlight on one of the real all-time greats.

Allen, the pitching leader came within a whisker of equalling the American League record mark of 16 straight wins. It took a 1-to-0 setback in his final start of the year to mar Johnny's perfect record.

Of DiMaggio, so much has already been written that it would be gilding the lily to add any more words of praise. Suffice it to say that even his fellow ball players speak of him with awe. The boy has everything—he's "colossal" to borrow a famous Durante expression.

Bob Quinn Names Stengel Manager of Boston Bees

BY BERNARD FREEMAN

Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON, Oct. 26—Bob Quinn, president of the Boston Bees, picked up a telephone in his office, called Omaha, Tex., and presto! Casey Stengel was back in the major leagues.

"Listen, Case, want to come with us next year?" bellowed Quinn yesterday as a roomful of newspapermen listened in.

"Certainly, I'd be delighted thank you very much," came the reply—and Stengel who received $15,000 last year for not managing the Brooklyn Dodgers while Burleigh Grimes got only $7,500 for piloting them again was a big league manager.

CASEY STENGEL

It was the second time Quinn lined up Casey as manager. The first was in 1934 when Quinn was with the Dodgers and was instrumental in obtaining Stengel to replace Max Carey.

One of the astonishing things about the talk was that Quinn never mentioned money or whether the job was one year or five.

"We'll have no trouble with Casey about contracts," Quinn laughed. "He'll be up here after the first of next month to meet all of you, and we'll straighten out several matters then, including the coaches."

Quinn indicated Stengel would decide the fate of Hank Gowdy and Bob Smith, coaches under Manager Bill McKechnie, who resigned shortly after the World Series to accept a better paying job with the Cincinnati Reds.

Casey apparently had no qualms about being third choice for the job, Quinn said, for as far back as World Series time the Bees' prexy turned down Stengel's verbal application, saying he was trying for "two other men."

The two, Donie Bush of Minneapolis and Gabby Hartnett of the Chicago Cubs, were not available, Quinn said, whereupon Stengel became the top choice.

He is 46 years old and once managed Toledo in the American association.

BULLETIN

By The Associated Press

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 26—Trainers ministered their charges early today from the $13,000 Churchill handicap mile and a sixteenth feature which brought War Admiral back to active racing.

Included was M. Vernon's Threaddeedle, assigned top weight of 119 pounds compared to the 114 for War Admiral, winner of the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont Stakes while carrying 126 pounds. Turbine Frank and Bottle Cap were the others.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 26—War Admiral, the three-year-old champion, got a severe test to show whether or not he could pick up the victory string from the point where a bruised hoof forced him from competition nearly a month ago.

Glen Riddle Farm's speedy little warrior, son of War Admiral was entered against other champions in the $13,000 Churchill handicap, fall and feature event on the day's program here.

It was the first time the winner of the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont Stakes had been entered in a race since the Admiral injured a hoof in the Belmont last June 5.

SNATCHES OF SPORTS

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 — Don't look now, but a southern and a mid-western college are flirting with Doug Dashiell, dashing young head coach of the U. of Nevada. Each offers a three-year contract. Yep, Doug is a-listening. Sports scribes in the deep south are beating loud tomtoms to land Frank (Bruiser) Kinard, U. of Mississippi tackle, Walter Mayberry, Florida halfback and Quinton Lumpkin, Georgia center, on the AP All-America. Rival coaches are lending a hand too, so the lads must be pretty near tops. This week's feed box special is Yale over Dartmouth. Take it or leave it.

Good luck and plenty of it to old Casey Stengel up there in Beantown. If you ask us, Prexy Bob Quinn made another of his shrewd moves. . . Baby Stribling, who once showed promise as a fighter, now is a high pressure auto salesman at Hattiesburg, Miss. . . Pa is president of the firm and Ma is vice president. . . Business is booming. Henry Armstrong is a 3 to 2 favorite to lift Petey Sarron's featherweight crown Friday night when Mike Jacobs bows into the Garden. . . . Al Jolson, the mammy singer (who only owns him) never has taken a cent of Armstrong's ring earnings.

Ralph Gold, the fight manager, is taking bows for going to England and snagging Ginger Foran, called the best featherweight in the empire. . . New York scribes, busy doing Bill Terry's Christmas shopping for him, say another bid for Dolph Camilli of the Phils is the next piece of Giant business. (Which would be O. K. for Dolph.) Joe Gould, who piloted Jimmy Braddock to the heavyweight title, has taken Tom Beaupre, Dallas heavyweight, under his wing and is on the market for a leading southern lightweight.

That new Pitt athletic policy was kept secret since July because Pitt felt it would only be laughed at for trying to reform its football. . . Two Smoky City scribes, Jess Carver and Chet Smith, found out Panther players really were pushing brooms, etc., and informed Athletic Director James Hagan they were going to print what they knew about his new deal. . . So he decided to spring it himself. . . One and all say Hagan is a grand fellow and 100 per cent sincere in what he is trying to do.

GRIDIRON ODDITIES

In 1918, Navy played the Great Lakes Naval Training station. Navy lost, 6-0, when a Great Lakes player recovered a fumble and got away. A Navy substitute, Saunders, dashed from the bench and made the tackle. In the hullabaloo that followed, Dickson, the G. L. player, walked down the field and touched the ball down. G. L. got the touchdown and won, 7-6.—By Charley Bachman, Michigan State, and Paddy Driscoll, Marquette.

PATTERN 4484

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday, Oct. 27

DISTURBED and doubtful conditions seem to affect the affairs of this day, judging by astral forces and mutual aspects. Treachery or duplicity, with some underhanded work to be guarded against, is shown. Sudden journeys or abrupt change of plans may bring benefits if handled wisely.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of effort and possibly a sudden readjustment of the plans, with complications and change, removal or travel. If they are handled wisely these should result in success but be alert to detect any underhanded methods particularly concerning finances.

A child born on this day may be somewhat restive, changeable and given to a sudden upheaval of itself and its plans. It will be affectionate, likable and will make many happy friendships in its private life.

STOCKS STAGE NEW RAMPAGE

One to Five Point Drop at Start Changed to Equal Rise, Then Another Fall.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—A wild-eyed stock market today ran the gamut of declines and rallies with such feverish frequency as to bewilder even the most experienced traders.

In a buying rush that put the ticker tape four minutes behind, the list converted an early setback of one to five points into gains of as much within the space of a few minutes.

Chrysler led the upswing at a fast clip and short sellers at the opening quickly sought cover, brokers said. The pace then slowed to a jog and extreme advances were halved in some cases. Near the fourth hour the market appeared somewhat weary and losses were to be seen here and there.

Initial selling was thought to have been based on the belief the run-up yesterday was a bit too sharp to have been healthy.

There was no particular news to account for the subsequent snap-back. The reversion to quietness accompanied word the federal reserve governors were holding their regular weekly meeting at Washington and that the board's margin expert was not in attendance. This was taken as a sign by the analysts that any easing of margin requirements at this time was hardly probable.

Rail stocks were narrow and carrier bonds pointed downward. Commodities were uneven although grain and cotton futures improved. Export copper was given a lift and red metal prices in London were raised.

Well out in front at one time—some retreated later—were Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, National Steel, Republic, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, J. I. Case, American Can, Westinghouse, Texas Corp., Baltimore & Ohio, Allis Chalmbers and Union Carbide.

Much of Wall street's interest was given the meeting of U. S. Steel directors, to be held after the market's close, and there was considerable speculation on whether a dividend would be voted on the common stock.

Although the sides were still cloudy for some corporations, it was not overlooked that the first 124 industrial concerns to report for the third quarter showed aggregate net up 11.9 per cent over the same 1936 months.

On the other hand, the growing operating costs of the railroads were exemplified by the fact the first 31 lines to publish income figures for September disclosed gross up 1.4 per cent compared with the year before but net operating revenues were off 12.4 per cent.

SOIL CONSERVATION CHECK STARTS HERE

15 Checkers Get Instructions on Work To Determine Marion County Payments.

At the meeting 15 checkers were given instructions for making the final check which will determine the extent to which 1,200 Marion county farmers are eligible to share in the conservation program benefits.

Officials of the county agent's office today said approximately two weeks will be required to complete the check. Immediately following the check reports for all county farms will be completed and sent to state headquarters in Columbus. LATE SLUMP ERASES WHEAT PRICE GAINS

2½ Cent Advance Dropped Amid Forecasts of Good Crop in Australia.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 26—Late reactions in wheat prices today virtually wiped out earlier gains of 2½ cents a bushel inspired by bullish Australian crop forecasts.

Selling of wheat futures increased when the Chicago December delivery approached $1 a bushel. The subsequent reaction was intensified by sharp setbacks of securities and by a dip in the corn market despite word of fresh export purchases of corn.

At the close, wheat was unchanged to ⅝ higher compared with yesterday's finish, Dec. 97¾-⅞, May 97½-¾, corn ⅛-⅓ down, Dec. 58¾-¼, May 59⅝, and oats unchanged to ⅛ off.

WORD ON FARM LOANS RECEIVED BY AGENT

Rehabilitation Director Here Explains Government Aid to Rural Residents.

In response to numerous inquiries he has received regarding the possible effect of the Bankhead-Jones farm tenant act in Marion county, E. C. Sleeth, in charge of the county rehabilitation offices of Marion and Crawford counties today reviewed information he has received from state headquarters regarding the act.

Ohio, he said, is to receive $226,327 during the current year to loan to tenants for the purchase of family-size farms. This is Ohio's share of a total of $9,500,000 provided under terms of the act.

Portioning of the funds among the states was based on farm population and prevalence of farm tenancy, it was explained. It is expected the program will be placed in effect in about 300 counties of the country this year.

Mr. Sleeth said Ohio counties to be included in this list would be chosen later on a basis similar to the one used for portioning funds among states. Counties in which the loans will be available are expected to have at least five loans and not more than 10, he added.

Those eligible include farm tenants, farm laborers, share croppers or other persons who obtain a major share of their income from farming operations. Applications may be filed with the rural rehabilitation supervisor. Farmer committeemen in each county share in the program will assist in examining applicants and investigating farms the applicant wish to purchase.

Factors to be considered in acting on applications include the past reputation of applicants for paying debts, stability of residence, ability and experience in farming, health and general character. Those who could finance purchase of land through other government or recognized credit agencies will not be eligible for tenant loans.

UPPER SANDUSKY

During the War of 1812 Fort Ferree stood on the site of the present Upper Sandusky. It was built by soldiers under Gen. Harrison and was for a time used by him rather as a headquarters than a stronghold. The Wyandots who lived in that vicinity were friendly and there was no need for a strong force of soldiers.

The commissioners of Wyandot county were induced by a gift of real estate, ostensibly for sites for county buildings, to establish Upper Sandusky as the seat of the county. The survey of the town was made by a French surveyor, Louis Classon.

Many of the original houses in Upper Sandusky were built entirely of black walnut, nearly priceless now, but then not highly prized, but adapted to construction work because of its softness, straight grain and easy working qualities.

2 SCOUT CUB PACKS WILL BE ORGANIZED

Plans for Immediate Organization Made at Marion, Prospect Meeting.

Immediate organization of at least two Boy Scout Cub Packs was assured last night at a meeting of parents and teachers from Marion and Prospect in the Epworth M. E. Sunday school rooms. D. T. Mills, county school superintendent, was in charge of the meeting and talked on the principles of Cubbing. He praised the program's soundness from an educational viewpoint.

Wendell S. Wiant spoke on the organization of the dens which comprise a pack and which, he explained, are made up of neighborhood groups of boys meeting in their own homes and carrying out the cub activities after school during their free time.

The organization of the cub packs, with emphasis a fathers and mothers assisting their sons in the program, was discussed by Arthur S. Brooks, scout executive. The group of parents from Prospect will complete the organization of a cubbing committee and select the Cubmaster and den leaders at a meeting in Prospect high school next Thursday night. Completion of the Marion cub pack will be made at a luncheon meeting the same day.

"Cubbing is not Boy Scouting whittled down to fit a nine-year-old," Mr. Brooks explained. "It is a completely different program carefully developed after nation-wide research in the particular age-needs of the younger boy," he said. "Cubbing is activity centered almost entirely around a boy's home and its immediate surroundings in which the parents have an active part. The cubbing motto is 'A Cub is Square' and he promises to be 'fair, happy and game' in all things," Brooks said.

The program is available to all boys of 9-10-11 years of age while the scouting program is for boys over 12.

IT'S ODD
But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

NEW YORK—Of all odd things in the world number one is possibly the roaring sands of the Kalahari desert in Africa.

A. D. Lewis has just had as much fun as a boy with a new sled, while making a scientific investigation of the road. He slid down dunes on the seat of his pants.

This happened in an elongated patch of white sand near the southeast corner of the desert.

The roars are confined to this area.

Mr. Lewis slid in hitches. With every slide the sand under his pants roared with a noise audible 600 yards. It sounded, he said, like distant thunder.

The noise appears, he concluded, whenever the sand is pushed "in a heaped-up manner." Sticking fingers in the sand and moving them up and down made the roar. Upward motion produced a higher pitch than downward.

Inspection showed that the sand grains were more rounded and of more uniform size than in the surrounding desert. A sackful, taken back to Pretoria, would roar whenever the bag was tilted. But if the bag was left open a few weeks, the roar disappeared. It could be restored for a short time by heating the sand in an oven.

Said to do its work more accurately than can be done by hand, a coin operated device has been invented to mix carbonated beverages and serve them in paper cups.

WOMAN KILLS 39 SNAKES
By International News Service

LINCOLN, Neb.—A case of literal, not figurative delirium tremens, was reported in Chardon, Neb., recently when two women, Mrs. Ruth Lienbeck and Mrs. Mable Olson, together killed 39 rattlesnakes while walking in a cornfield looking for some roasting ears in a late planted field. The women came upon the crawlingmass when their dog was bitten and then destroyed by a big rattler. The two intrepid ies massacred nine large and 49 smaller ones in a time.

$50,000 ASKED IN TWO DAMAGE SUITS

Action Begun Against Erie Railroad Co. as Result of Fatal Accident Here.

Two damage suits asking a total of $50,000 have been filed against the Erie Railroad company in common pleas court here as the result of an accident in the railroad yards last June 9 in which one man was killed and several other injured.

The plaintiffs in the suit are Earl Hoch, 20, represented by his father W. C. Hoch of near Marion, and Mary Dean, administratrix of the estate of her son, Herbert Alexander, who was killed in the mishap. Both suits ask damages of $25,000.

According to the petitions the accident occurred when a train of freight cars ran through an open switch and struck a work train on which the men were unloading track materials from hopper cars. Alexander, his petition states, was thrown through an open hopper in the bottom of a car and killed. Hoch alleges he was severely injured when thrown against the side of the car.

Both plaintiffs are represented by Attorney J. E. Mathews of Cleveland.

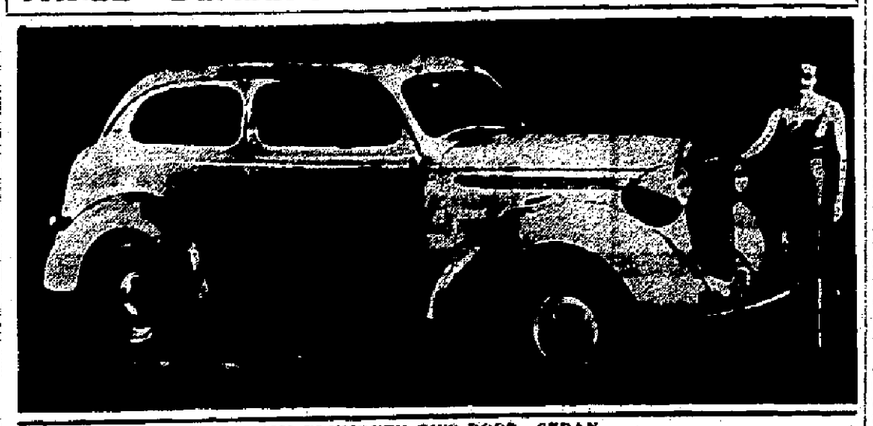
THREE DEALERS SHOW NEW PLYMOUTHS



1938 PLYMOUTH TWO-DOOR SEDAN

A Plymouth of new design—with easier steering, safer vision and many new features—officially opens Plymouth's tenth anniversary this week as new models are formally displayed in the showrooms of three dealers in the city, Goethe & Welsh Sales & Service at 440 West Center street, Modern Motors Inc. at 136 North Prospect street and Perry Motor Co. at 203 South Main street. The anniversary car again features unusual size and roominess with ample space for six passengers in all sedan models. Overall length of all models is 194 inches, from bumper to bumper.

The complete 1938 lines includes three "business" and eight "deluxe" body types, all on 112-inch wheelbases, with L-head engines of 82-horsepower. The cars appear larger and roomier and have a new hood which sweeps farther forward at the top to meet a different radiator grille, which now rises much more vertically than the sloping front of last year.

Bigger headlamps of teardrop design increases the impression of greater mass. Fenders dip lower in front, an inch and one-half deeper than last year's fender line. Grille design remains almost the same with vertical chrome bars on both sides of a center strip in body color. Plymouth introduces a new hood design with side fixed panels and only the top sections swinging open for routine service, water and oil.

The interior color scheme is sable brown, with coach vermilion accents at the center spots of two instrument dials, and on the horn button. Upholstery materials are optional; either broadcloth or mohair. The safety-styled instrument panel, with all controls sunk or recessed flush with the surface, appears this year with everything centered in a unified assembly in the middle of the board.

Much greater ease of control and safer operation are the performance claims of Plymouth designers. Easier steering with faster response to the wheel, are said to result from important changes in this year's steering system. In the mechanical line a stronger fuel pump with a high capacity has been added to drive the fuel up to the carburetor under increased pressure.

Bodies are finished in high-luster enamels which are said to have long life and unusual durability. Models on display at the showrooms here are: Goethe & Welsh—4-door deluxe touring sedan; Modern Motors Inc.—coupe, two and four-door standard sedans and deluxe—two and four-door touring sedans, two and four door sedans and coupe; Perry Motor Co.—four-door and four-door deluxe touring sedans. Other body models are expected in the near future.

CITIZENS OF MARION

"My Record Is My Platform"

Believe it or not!

The SO-CALLED police and firemen's pension systen will cost you, taxpayers in Marion, at the present rate of pay the gigantic sum of $527,000 in the next 14 years, unless abolished!

Of this amount LABOR WOULD HAVE TO PAY AT LEAST $427,000.

This year for every $6.00 you paid in real estate taxes for City operating purposes, the police and firemen's pension laws would force you to pay $1 for their SO-CALLED pension.

After only 20 years of service policemen retired on a SO-CALLED pension of $102.18 to $150.75 a month.

And they did NOT CONTRIBUTE one cent to their SO-CALLED pension fund.

TEACHERS, POSTAL and RAILWAY EMPLOYEES' MUST contribute to THEIR PENSION FUNDS.

Under the Social Security Act workers must contribute to the OLD AGE PENSION FUND. They can not get any pension before the age of 65, unless disabled.

RAILWAY EMPLOYEES must have at least 30 years of service and be at least 65 years of age before they can go on full pension.

TEACHERS must work 36 years and be at least 60 years of age.

POSTAL EMPLOYEES must work 30 years and be 65 years of age before eligible to retire on full pension.

If the Social Security laws were made to apply to policemen in Marion with only 20 years of service, and IF THEY PAID INTO THEIR FUND 3% OF THEIR SALARIES, AND IF THEY WORKED UNTIL THE AGE OF 65, they could retire on a pension of $45.50 a month.

Similarly under the Railway Pension Act, policemen in Marion after 20 years of service, IF THEY PAID INTO THEIR FUND, could retire on a pension of $50 a month.

And certainly no one can deny that the skill and training required of railway employees is on the average much higher than that of policemen and firemen.

Insurance Companies classify the risks of policemen and firemen and railway workers identical.

The jobs of the workers who must pay at least 85% of these SO-CALLED pensions are NOT guaranteed. And still worse, is the fact that the average scale of pay of these workers is actually less than these SO-CALLED police and firemen's pensions.

This SO-CALLED police and firemen's pension system is one of the gravest injustices. Jefferson would say, "IT TAKES FROM THE MOUTH OF LABOR THE BREAD IT HAS EARNED."

If you believe we were right in abolishing this SO-CALLED pension system, will you go to the polls November 2nd and by your vote SAY SO?

Do not overlook the fact that your vote may have a determining effect upon the ultimate fate of this SO-CALLED pension system, if not in the courts, perhaps in the legislature. If just one community registers a strong protest against it, legislators will be forced to repeal it and set up something more equitable and just.

POISONOUS ELIXIR TAKEN OFF MARKET

Federal Men Confiscate Nearly All of Drug That Caused 76 Deaths in U. S.

By The Associated Press

[illegible], Oct. 26—A government official said today virtually all of the elixir of sulfanilamide which caused 76 deaths in the nation has been removed from the market.

J. G. Clarke, chief of the central states division of the U. S. food and drug administration, said federal investigators had confiscated or accounted for all principal shipments of the preparation, 700 bottles, mostly pint size.

Several one-ounce sample bottles given to salesmen and physicians and three ounces given to a St. Louis resident by his physician were being traced, Clarke said, adding he knew almost all of the elixir had been confiscated in 20 midwestern states and had been assured of its removal from the market elsewhere.

Five deaths in Georgia, and one each in Madisonville, Tex., Copley, O., Cary, Miss., Clayton, Ala., and St. Louis, Mo., were the latest reported to the American Medical association.

Dr. Morris Fishbein, the association's spokesman, said other deaths were being investigated to determine whether they were caused by the wine-colored preparation. Laboratory experiments disclosed diethylene glycol was the lethal agent in the mixture, he said.

Sulfanilamide, in contradistinction to the deadly preparation in which it was only a component, is a new drug made from a red dye discovered in Germany.

Commenting upon the recent deaths attributed to the elixir, Dr. Fishbein said it was prescribed in some cases for persons suffering from streptococcic infections, and in others for patients afflicted with meningitis and gonorrhea.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Oct. 26 — S. A. Postle, chief of the Cincinnati district, U. S. food and drug administration, said today all the dangerous elixir of sulfanilamide in Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana and Tennessee had been confiscated.

He reported that more than 100 bottles of the drug had been seized. He said this was all that had been sent into the four states.

Dr. Postle said only two sales were reported in northern Kentucky and only one in southern Ohio.

Seizures were reported at Warren, where two bottles consigned to a drug store were taken; Steubenville, Copley, Cambridge and Middleport, in Ohio, Dr. Postle said, and at Covington, Dayton, Maysville, Harrodsburg, Lancaster, Monticello, and Augusta, in Kentucky.

1937 Red Cross Poster

THE Red Cross annual roll call poster with its appeal for members is the work of Walter W. Seaton, noted New York and California artist. Seaton's portraits of radio and movie stars, his murals and posters have won him fame throughout the nation. The current poster is the second he has painted for the Red Cross, thus joining a long list of distinguished artists who since the World War years have illustrated the spirit of the Red Cross in the call for memberships. Red Cross roll call begins Armistice Day and ends Thanksgiving Day.

ARMISTICE DAY PARADE PROGRAM OUTLINED HERE

The largest and most representative Armistice day parade in Marion in recent years was virtually assured last night at a meeting of the general Armistice day committee at the Legion Dugout.

One cup will be awarded to the best patriotic float, one for the best industrial or business float, one to the second best industrial or business float and one, a service cup, to the Boy Scout troop with the largest percentage of members in uniform and in charge of the scoutmaster or assistant scoutmaster. The Boy Scouts will not march but will be on duty during the parade.

Winners of the cups for three successive years will be entitled to permanent possession.

Parade Plans

According to plan made last night all World war veterans will march as a unit. Various labor organizations have responded to the invitation to participate, it was announced, and civic organizations were urged to take part in the celebration.

The committee asked today that all idustrial plants, business firms, retail stores and business firms, as insurance agencies, automobile agencies and tire agencies, enter floats and that if possible, the floats carry a patriotic theme.

Veterans organizations in surrounding communities have been invited to come to Marion and enter the parade, and to bring with them their musical units, such as bands and drum corps.

The final meeting of the committee will be held Monday night, Nov 8, at 8 at the Legion Dugout.

Pneumonia

Recently the New York Medical society undertook a most commendable public service. In collaboration with the bureau of pneumonia control and in co-operation with all of the large medical schools and hospitals of New York state, it is sponsoring a series of lectures. These lectures relate to "The Diagnosis and Treatment of Pneumonia."

They are to be held in the various academic centers of the state. Physicians in the surrounding counties will gather for what in reality are specialized post-graduate courses. The plans call for an extensive study of all the various problems of pneumonia.

To the average person this undertaking may come as a surprise. He will wonder why the graduate physician needs to be taught anything about a disease so familiar as pneumonia. But physicians throughout the world are disturbed about the high death rate of this ancient enemy of mankind and are determined to curb it.

Surely every layman should be interested in having a means found to prevent this very dangerous disease. It is particularly serious when it attacks the very young and the old.

To have a successful campaign against pneumonia there must be co-operation of physicians and layman. When every one realizes the dangers of pneumonia and reports to the doctor at the earliest sign of trouble, many lives will be saved.

Surely, if the physicians are willing to go out of their way to learn the latest advancements in the treatment of this disease, all the rest of us should be pleased. Likewise, we should avail ourselves of the modern treatment.

Special serums are now used in the treatment of pneumonia. They are of value only in certain types of infection. Even in selected cases they are of little value if the disease has gone on for several days before being used.

We are approaching the season of the year when pneumonia and other infections of the breathing apparatus are likely to be prevalent. Call your doctor if you are ill. Let me warn against the indiscriminate use of cough syrups and patent medicines. Self-medication is usually dangerous and particularly so in pneumonia. When the true nature of the cough is masked by some medicated syrup or other, it creates a feeling of security which is misleading and dangerous.

Bear in mind that all colds, grippes, sore throats and simple fevers pave the way for some form of pneumonia. Neglect prevention in connection with the pneumonia season. Guard against all unnecessary exposure.

Easy To Detect Phoney Money, Expert Says, While Working on Marion Case

By CHARLES HOSTETTLER

"THAT'S counterfeit money," Ira L. Brought, agent in charge of the United States secret service office at Toledo, said without hesitation Sunday at police headquarters here when he first glanced at one of the $20 bills which was part of nearly $2,000 confiscated by Marion police following the arrest of a suspected passer of the bogus bills.

Brought's quick identification of the currency as "counterfeit," came after other persons accustomed to handling paper money examined it closely and reported that it "looked good." Even after examining a bill under a "Detectograph," a device which throws a bright light on the bill, which is then viewed through a microscope lens, they were unable to say definitely that it was counterfeit.

"It certainly looks good to me," said one of those making the inspection and another added that he "wouldn't mind having a cartload of it," so near-perfect were the counterfeit bills. To Brought's experienced eye, however, the bill just wasn't good, and he went on to tell police how he can tell bad currency from good. Officers here, who previously were acquainted with Brought's work, say the secret service agent can recognize a piece of counterfeit money "as far as he can see it."

How to Go About It

"The first requisite in determining whether or not a questionable note is genuine or counterfeit is to be familiar with the characteristics of genuine currency," Brought pointed out in a brief interview when he came here to assist in the investigation of the confiscated bogus money. "It is comparatively easy to determine the character of any note after you have made some study of the genuine bill.

"In the examination of the genuine note it is essential that particular attention and study be given to the fine detail work with respect to the engraving and this study can best be made in an examination of the portrait subjects. In the portrait the screening must be clear and uniform, with unbroken lines and no solid or black spots," Brought related.

"It will be observed that the lines engraved to represent threads and hair on the subject are very fine, uniform, unbroken and clearly distinct. It will also be observed, in the examination of a genuine note, that the portrait is full of lifelike expression, which is never true in the case of a counterfeit. The small details, such as the threads of hair, together with the lines giving the portrait a life-like expression, defy reproduction and invariably black smudges will appear if the note is counterfeit.

"Feel" Important

"The original thought with respect to whether or not a note is genuine will arise from the appearance or feel of the paper. After making the portrait examination and there still remains a doubt as to the true character of the note under examination, there are a number of supporting examinations you can make. For example, determine whether or not the note is impregnated with blue and red silk thread. If there is no thread the note is counterfeit," Brought said.

"The serial numbers should also be examined in order to determine whether they are out of line, and in case they are, the bill is counterfeit. Another test is to divide the serial number by six. If the remainder is one, the check letter (small letter down in the right-hand corner of the face of the note) should be A or G, if the remainder is two the check letter should be B or H, if the remainder is three the letter should be C or I, if the remainder is four the letter should be D or J, if five E or K, and if there is no remainder the check letter should be F or L—otherwise the bill is counterfeit.

"Summing up the question of the detection of counterfeit money, it may be said that you have been attracted to a particular note by its appearance and the feel of the paper, you then examine the fine detail engraving which reproduces the portrait. Supporting that examination by ascertaining whether or not the paper is impregnated with silk threads, whether the division of the serial numbers gives the proper check letter, whether the serial number and all other numbers together with the lettering are even, clear and distinct as to each letter or digit and whether the scroll work on the front and back is clear and distinct in its intirety.

Extra Safeguard

"If, after making the various examinations you are still in doubt as to the true character of the note under examination, you should place your initials with pencil on the border of the note and make some notation as to the identify of the person from whom you received the particular bill, so that in the event the note is later detected as being counterfeit at some bank, its actual origin can be determined.

"If you give careful study to these suggestions there is little likelihood that you will be victimized by the receipt of counterfeit money," Brought said.

Marion's Convention Guests

MARION cordially welcomes members of the Ohio division of the Farmers' Educational and Cooperative Union, which opens its fourth annual convention here today. This is an organization formed to maintain the highest possible standards of life in rural communities and consequently is one of interest to people generally, whether they live in the city or on the farm. Prosperity for the farmer is a fundamental essential for the nation's welfare, and so any movement designed to keep agriculture on a sound and profitable basis meets with the public's unanimous support and approval.

In Marion and other cities throughout this section of the state there is naturally an unusual measure of interest in activities of farm organizations. Here, thanks to nature's generous endowment, agriculture is most decisively a major factor in the economic structure and as a result the farmer's problems are of direct and immediate concern to everybody. That is why every person in Marion and its neighboring cities view with hearty approval all organizations striving to help the agricultural industry.

The Farmers' Educational and Cooperative Union does not side in with the New Deal in all its farm policies, according to information at hand. Its members have their own ideas as to how the best conditions can be brought about and maintained in agriculture and some of them do not coincide with the methods adopted under the present federal administration. Probability that these views will be expressed in the course of the proceedings here tends to augment public interest in the convention. It also places the assemblage in position to give timely constructive service, for with congress soon to convene with the farm program scheduled for consideration, recommendations from this Ohio group of practical and thinking farmers should be exceptionally valuable.

Success Story

GEORGE HORACE LORIMER made The Saturday Evening Post because Cyrus H. K. Curtis made George Horace Lorimer. It's the kind of a success story that leaves New Thoughters drumming the table and trying to think up snappy answers.

Other magazines, they will say hopefully, have contributed more to the national welfare. Why," they will ejaculate, "The Post really's nothing but a red hot advertising medium with a lot of fiction and articles sprinkled through it. If that's the best George Horace Lorimer could do, he should have kept on being a newspaper reporter."

Thus, indirectly, the pinks who preach that old-fashioned success stories are just a big pain in the neck to them probably are capable of paying the best possible tribute to Editor Lorimer and his career as, first the rescuer, then the editor, of a great national magazine which found a place for itself in America and then set out to fill that place acceptably.

Increasing Hazard

HIGH SPEED TRAINS increase the grade crossing hazard. The Mason City, Ia., accident in which 10 lives were lost is a grim reminder that grade crossings and streamlined trains roaring through them do not belong together.

The safety limit for fast-moving vehicles on the same plane is exceeded as soon as they reach a speed sufficient to cause destruction of the objects they may hit. In the case of a train hitting an automobile, even a heavy bus, that limit is, of course, very low.

There is only one solution—elimination of grade crossings. Logic permits no other. Unfortunately, the solution is tremendously expensive, but who dares to say that the cost of eliminating a certain grade crossing in Mason City was not exceeded many times last Friday night when a streamlined train crashed into a busload of school children?

Incognito

THERE ARE many puzzling things about the sudden interest of the Duke of Windsor in housing, but none more puzzling than something the secretary of the interior, Mr. Ickes, has just said.

He was telling about an inquiry from the duke's representatives for information on outstanding projects. Mr. Ickes said somewhat tartly that he replied with a "collect cable." He continued, "I understand the duke is coming over incognito, and I would not want to embarrass him. We are not handling his publicity."

Until some one explains this more fully, the prospect is bound to build up suspense. That man who rings the doorbell and says he wants to take a peek about the house to see if everything's all right may really be the Duke of Windsor underneath his mustache and cap.

Or that young woman who goes all over the building under the pretense of being a magazine salesman may be the former Wallis Warfield in person. It looks like about the most exciting holiday season in years.

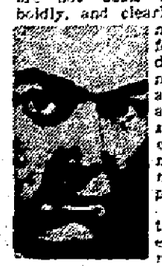
Lippmann Explains Underlying Causes of Business Decline and Way To Overcome Them.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—While it is clear enough that there are not the same dangers today as there were after the crash of 1929, it is none the less true that recovery has been halted and that a depression is in the making.

There is no reason for thinking that it must be as grave and as prolonged as the depression which ended in the winter of 1933. But there is also no reason for thinking that it cannot become serious indeed if its causes are not dealt with promptly, boldly, and clearly. If for the next three or four months we drift, we shall more than probably drift into as bad a depression as the excitedly pessimistic stock market is now predicting.



Walter Lippman

My own picture of the present situation, arrived at after some inquiry and study, is in the broadest terms about as follows:

Though it was not clear to many of us while it was happening, it is now obvious that recovery reached its peak last winter—roughly between December and March. Since that time economic conditions have not been improving. They have been deteriorating. In the spring and summer they became worse, so gradually and imperceptibly at first that few observers realized what was happening. But by the end of August the halting of the recovery, the relapse into mild depression, and the fear of a bad depression, were reflected violently in the stock market.

Once again we have been reminded of the old saying that few people recognize a boom or a slump until six months after it has begun.

The recovery which was halted last winter was stimulated to a high degree by the deliberately inflationary actions of the Federal government. The 1936 boom was financed by the cheap money policy of the federal reserve board by the soldiers' bonus, by the huge relief expenditures, and by the imports of foreign gold.

After the election and during the winter the federal reserve board, the treasury, and the White House became properly and genuinely alarmed at the dangerously rapid rise in prices which threatened to produce an uncontrollable inflation. So they jammed on the brakes. They abolished the largest part of the excess reserves. They sterilized the foreign gold imports. And, though only a few experts seem as yet to realize it, they not only balanced the real federal budget for this year, but actualy created a situation in which the government is now taking more money from the people in taxes than it is spending.

I know that this is not the popular notion and until I had looked into the facts I had not realized it. But it is a fact. What has happened is that the federal government and the states are collecting something over a billion dollars under the social security act, that this money is greater than the deficit, that the surplus is used to buy back the government's bonds, and that on net balance the government is actually reducing the national debt owed to the people.

Picture Year Ago

Thus in its total impact on business the government is now and has been for some months deflationary. It was not only eminently proper but absolutely necessary that it should be. But —and this is the crux of the matter, I think—if the government through the treasury and federal reserve board was going to stop its contribution to the boom, the only way a depression could be avoided was to have spending through private capital investment replace the spending provoked by the soldiers' bonus and relief.

A year ago it looked as if private capital stimulated by the prospect of profits, was going to do just that. But before private investment had really gotten very far, conditions were allowed to develop and measures were taken which checked investment abruptly and drastically. With the government no longer providing a stimulus to business, and with business failing to provide its own stimulus through private investment, the boom had to end and a depression had to begin.

The causes of the present de-

The Federal Reserve Board Has Given Good Advice on Cure for Present Business Slump.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—Advice of all kinds is being given President Roosevelt these days, but it may be assumed that none of it carries as much weight as that which is formally transmitted to him by the federal reserve board itself.

There is much talk going the rounds about a confidential report, transmitted within the last fortnight by the board to the White House, which, among other things, definitely recommends the following:

1. An adjustment of the labor situation so that costs do not get so high as to prevent sales of products and services.

2. Direct encouragement to housing as an industry which can take up much of the slack in business brought about by curtailment of government expenditures.

3. Balancing of the budget at the earliest possible moment.

4. The working out of some method or policy which will cause the utilities to feel they can resume construction of much needed facilities in the transmission and distribution of power. It is estimated by the board's experts that the utilities are spending only about 40 per cent of what they could spend.

Some of the advice would seem already to have been taken. It seems clear that only the influence of President Roosevelt himself could have brought the C.I.O. and the A. F. of L. together for peace conferences, and only his influence and pressure will cause these two rival organizations to get together and bring some kind of order out of the chaos that has existed in the labor world.

Spending Habit Strong

As for balancing of the budget, a sincere effort is being made to cut down expenses, but the spending habit is so strong and the pressure to keep on spending is so great from cities and states and political machines everywhere, not to mention congress itself, that hopes for a balanced budget in 1939 are not too sanguine. But the effort is more serious than ever before under the new deal.

The problem of what to do about the utilities is a grave one because direct responsibility for the present situation may be attributed to the President's own policy. The facts, however, are more important now than how the present situation arose.

For one thing, the quantity of electric power being used nowadays is about one-third in excess of 1929. Yet construction has lagged. Back in 1930, the utilities were spending $1,000,000,000 a year. This year, they are spending around $450,000,000.

Judging by the transmission and distributing facilities needed to take care of the country's needs and the extra generation required in various regions of the country not supplied by the government itself, the utilities could spend another $750,000,000 a year, or a total of about $1,200,000,000.

Why don't the utilities do it? In the first place, the public will probably not lend them the money because Mr. Roosevelt has hammered away at the utilities to such an extent as to scare away possible investors. Secondly, the only way to raise the money is by selling bonds or what is known as "senior securities." Here again, because of the administration's policy, the utilities have not been able to float common stock or equity money, because they have to a certain extent overbonded themselves already to take care of needs in the last three years of attacks by the new deal.

Reverse of Rail Policy

The doctrine preached by the President with respect to the railroads has been just the reverse. He has said that the roads should sell fewer bonds and more common stocks. Now, the utilities cannot sell their common stocks because of the administration's attitude toward utilities, and when they try to issue additional bonds, they find that, in certain companies, they do not have the necessary leeway to get extra capital.

The particular obstacles which the investor sees to buying the common stocks of the utilities is that the government is planning seven TVA's and is entering into direct competition with a $12,000,000,000 industry. Likewise, whether one agrees or disagrees with the holding company law and its "death sentence," a certain amount of reorganization is inevitable, and this complicates the matter of financing.

The whole utility business has been for a long time based on the idea that about 50 per cent is invested in bonds, 25 per cent in preferred stocks and 25 per cent in common stocks. The common stock holder takes the risk, but is in line for the profit, too.

The utility industry has practically abandoned hopes of being able, under the present administration's policies, ever to sell common stocks to the public. Then, too, the government's attack on the utilities has depreciated their values to such an extent that some experts doubt if, in certain instances, the bonds and preferred stocks actually cover their physical value today.

Certainly in the southern areas, the utility companies cannot refinance and sell bonds or preferred stocks or anything else because of the threat of TVA competition. All during the time other industries were refinancing and getting lower interest rates, the utilities have been stymied. Their position is unchanged today. Now that a major depression may be on the way, the administration may perhaps give consideration to how it can restore the spending power of the utility industry. The President may possibly be persuaded to put recovery ahead of reform, as so many people have been urging for the last three years.

Wilbur Hand of Toledo was on trial in common pleas court at Bucyrus, charged with having taken part in the holdup of the Commercial Savings Bank in Galion on June 29 along with four other men. He was identified by Cashier E. B. Beall as the man who came up to the cashier's window and commanded that clerks be herded in a small room. Hand, now in prison, makes an annual appeal for freedom to the parole board, asserting that he is innocent.

Mr. and Mrs. Lowell H. Guthery and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Strelitz returned from Hillsdale, Mich., where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Sawyer and attended the Ohio State-Michigan football game at Ann Arbor.

Final work on the main structure of the Harding Memorial was completed and interior finishing was started.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

It was Friday, Oct. 20, 1917.

The Second Liberty loan drive went over the top in the nation with subscriptions totaling $8,500,000,000 and probability that the final amount would be $5,000,000,000. In Marion county, where the quota was $650,000, subscriptions went to $700,000. The goal here was passed in a final "jollification feast" at the Tally Wag hall at which $190,000 was subscribed. French Crow, chairman of the committee in charge, acted as toastmaster and the principal address was given by Josiah Bindley, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Attacking in a heavy rainstorm, armies of France and England smashed another great gap in the German front in West Flanders, the drive being over a wide area east and northeast of Ypres.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. R. M. McClure of East Church street.

The Y. M. C. A. membership drive wound up with a jollification over signing of 583 new members, 83 over the goal, raising the total enrollment to 1,223, the highest figure in the association's history up to that time. The campaign, planned as a "baseball tournament" with E. J. Schoenlaub as "umpire," ended with the Cardinals, captained by J. J. Stafford, in first place with 163 memberships. Captain Stafford alone signed up 50.

Daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. James Carr of Orchard street and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis J. Black of Bellefontaine avenue.

Market Sidelights

Visit With Tax Attorney Who Predicted That 1937 Tax Law Would Bring Market Decline.

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Follow me for a few minutes and I will take you to a spot or two in Washington where some sidelights will be thrown upon the perplexing market situation.

First we go to a tax attorney. He represents some wealthy clients who oppose both the 1936 law taxing corporate surpluses and the 1937 tax law which destroyed the usefulness of personal holding companies as means of escape from income taxes.

This attorney is on record with a prediction that the 1937 tax law enacted last August would precipitate an extensive market decline. He predicted before the bill was drafted that if personal holding companies were made useless as means of escape from high taxes, rich men would begin liquidating those corporations as fast as they could. There are 5,500 of them. The attorney estimated they held upwards of a billion dollars worth of securities.

He argued that the market was weakened considerably by other factors, including business recession, and that the 1937 tax law, by inaugurating this liquidation of personal holding companies, precipitated the decline.

The Attorney's Story.

Now why should the rich man liquidate his personal holding company? For just this reason, the tax attorney explains.

Before the 1936 corporate surplus tax law, a rich man operated through his holding company to buy and sell actively in the market. Say he made money. He made enough perhaps to crowd his earnings up into figures where the income tax is as high as 75 per cent. But by holding part of his earnings in his "personal corporation" as a reserve of extra capital, he escaped paying the tax. He paid a tax only on the amount he took from his holding company for his personal use.

But under the new tax schedules, the government comes along and takes from 15 to 80 per cent of his holding company earnings. So why should he risk his money in speculation if the government gets most of the profit? Maybe he ought to be glad to pay, but he isn't.

Even with the 1936 tax law, rich men still found some use for personal holding companies. But the 1937 law ended their value entirely.

Now we go to the treasury.

Tax officials there are surprised at the coincidence that the market began its sag quickly after the 1937 tax bill was introduced. But they hesitate to say it is merely coincidence. They concede the tax may be one of the causes of the drop, but doubt if it was the "precipitating factor" pictured by the attorney.

And another thing: the tax attorney said big profits made on the rise would have meant large tax receipts to the treasury. But the sudden drop will allow traders to take "tax losses" so that those earnings will be largely neutralized.

That may be true to a degree, says the treasury, but keep in mind that a lot of short traders made money on the declining market. And the people who play the market short are mostly in the upper income brackets. The treasury, says one of its officials, will enjoy taxing traders who profited on the decline.

Worse Than Disease

(From The Detroit Free Press)

More than 3,000 delegates to the annual meeting of the American Public Health association in New York listened to reports on the advances in preventive medicine. But the vital statistics section heard Dr. Richard N. Whitfield of the Mississippi State Bureau of Health, declare that the homicide is one of the greatest menaces to public health.

In 1935, he said, there were more homicides than all the deaths from typhoid fever, para-typhoid fever, typhus, undulant fever, smallpox, scarlet fever and diphtheria combined. To combat this appalling record, he recommended an increase of executions from the present 170 a year to at least 2,000 annually.

"There are too few convictions, too much sob-sister sentimentality, too many pardons and suspensions of sentences, too much lax enforcement of laws against things that lead to killing, such as gambling, drunkenness and carrying concealed weapons," he said.

Michigan has its share of the 10,000 homicides annually. But Michigan is more ruthless with disease germs than it is with these killers, for whom the only sure means of eradication is capital punishment.

Servant Problem

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN
Associated Press Writer.

LONDON—Scarcity of domestic servants reached such grave proportions in British Isles that the government itself tackling the problem of finding household for Mrs. John Bull.

Roly-poly, black-mustached Minister of L Ernest Brown is considering organization "league of good household mistresses" to att more girls into servants' jobs. One Lon newspaper even credits him with a propose a marriage dowry for servant girls—but denies that.

One reason why so few English girls ch to be maids nowadays is the poor chance marriage in jobs where there is neither nor place to meet or entertain a boy friend

Not only that, but the eligible young men modern England reportedly look upon serv girls as beneath them.

League Badges.

The dowry idea is an old one. The la suggestion would have government and ployer contribute a few cents a week towar $150 dowry which the servant, if she wishe marry, would be entitled to after seven yea

The league of good household mistre would be a voluntary organization open to employers of servants who would accep charter of good conditions for maids. member would get a badge to display in house, proving to prospective servants that house was a good one to work in.

Badged houses would offer more leisure maids, better living conditions and greater cial comfort.

Domestic service, the labor minister fi ranks at the very bottom of the girls' li preferred jobs. They would even rather factory workers than domestics. As a rule earn only about $6.25 a week in the fact compared to the $5-a-week average, plus bo and room, in a household job. But factory have evenings, Saturday afternoon and days free. As maids they would get only half day off each week, with alternate Sundays free.

Then, too, a domestic often has to work the country where movies are scarce.

Thousands of new industries—including lighter work in the rearmament drive—are viding girls opportunities for jobs they di have in the old days.

Many English families have thrown up t hands and sold or shut down the large, fashioned houses which require a huge s of servants.

Families are moving into modern flats wh are springing up like mushrooms. In smaller space of a flat milady can do her work, aided by modern household equipm and perhaps by a twice-a-week maid furni ed by the management.

Today in Ohio History

The Indians were over-awed and asked peace. Bouquet demanded a guarantee their part, that they would return all the c tives they had taken in all previous wars. they hesitated, he began, on Oct. 28, 1764, erection of a permanent camp at a spot n the present city of Coshocton. The India speedily complied with his demand and withdrew.

Improper Home Life Blamed by Judge for Wave of Juvenile Delinquency

BY JACK ELLIOTT

JUDGE OSCAR ... day blamed improper ... and lack of parental ... for what he termed ... outbreak" of delin- ... Marion and vicinity ... last two months.

... ed the wave to come ... more than any other, ... of a puzzle to court ... their conjecture that ... ildren had become ac- ... the freedom of sum- ... and disregarded the ... imposed by school ...

... of juvenile cases was ... week with the arrest ... 14, 15 and 16, and ... 17, who had made an ... to Florida from Oct. ... and are now being held here in connection with the theft of an auto in Kentucky and possession of a gun. Investigation showed they came from good homes but that the parents apparently were powerless to control them, Judge Gast said.

The manner in which the five were caught leads to another aspect of delinquency prevalent at this time. The girls had been brought into court by Miss Grace Colvin for being absent from school and questioning led to the story of the trip. That instance of "skipping school" was but one of scores investigated by Miss Colvin this fall, Judge Gast said. Truancy has also increased this fall, court officials believe.

The recent series began about Sept. 1 with the arrest of two Marion boys in Kenton in connection with a half-dozen thefts and petty house burglaries at La Rue and Mt. Victory. On Sept. 12 a 12-year-old boy, later placed on probation, attempted to enter the residence of Sam Justice on Thompson street.

On Sept. 13 two boys, nine and ten years old, were arrested for theft of a bicycle from in front of the State theater. Taken to the detention home, the two were peaceful for a day then on the afternoon of Sept. 14 attempted to dig their way out of a cell but were discovered after penetrating a wall. They were placed on probation. Then on Oct. 6 the same boys were arrested and confessed to stealing a parked automobile because they "wanted to take a ride." One was sentenced to Lancaster and the other to the bureau of juvenile research for investigation.

Steal Scrap Iron

On Sept. 13 two boys attempted to sell 500 pounds of scrap iron to its original owner after they had stolen it from a railway car. They were 16 and 18 years old and were placed on probation.

An 18-year-old Marion boy was arrested in Alton, Ill., on Sept. 30 in connection with an automobile reported stolen here. On Oct. 3, three boys, two 10 and one 5, were arrested by police for throwing stones through windows of the First Reformed church and were given a lecture by Judge Gast.

About this time another boy was brought into court for stealing a magazine from a news stand and was also warned by the judge. On Oct. 5 the mother of a 15-year-old school girl complained her daughter stayed out of school in the afternoon to ride around the county with a 23-year-old man. Judge Gast fined the man $10 and suspended a three-month workhouse sentence on the provision he and the girl not see each other again.

On Oct. 12 two boys were fined $200 in municipal court for thefts of auto parts a few days earlier. Oct. 13 found four boys before Judge Gast in connection with two raids on chicken coops on South Prospect street. Two 17-year-old boys were placed on probation by Judge Gast on Oct. 14 for stealing from parked autos. They were implicated with the two older boys in municipal court.

Two boys were sentenced on Oct. 21 to the Boys Industrial school at Lancaster by Judge Gast for the theft of an auto a few days earlier from the city lot. A 19-year-old youth with them was held to the grand jury from municipal court.

Other Minor Cases

Other minor cases involving domestic trouble or truancy have also been numerous, court officials said.

"It is the result of a brakedown in the homes," Judge Gast commented. "I can't see why parents do not take control of their children. The bulk of juvenile delinquency before the court can be traced right back to the fact that parents don't have control of their children."

He warned against giving too many privileges and said that keeping proper hours would help as much as anything in reducing delinquency.

"If children get out of the hands of parents, the parents should come to the court for help," he said. "In the past we have saved many children from what might have been a criminal career by ironing out his problems in an informal way before anything really serious happened. Such a procedure carries no stigma and is entirely private," the judge explained.

He also stated he believes gangs or "partnerships" have been responsible for much delinquency.

"It has been my experience that when boys get together they are more likely to get into trouble than if they were alone. I can recall only three or four cases in the last eight or so years where a boy has committed an offense entirely by himself. When two heads get together, they think of things they wouldn't think of ordinarily."

The judge modified his statement by saying that naturally friendships between boys are desirable, but that parents should make it their business to see what kind of "friends" their children are making.

LIPPMANN WRITES ON AFFAIRS OF THE DAY

pression must, therefore, lie in the obstacles which have checked private investment. What are these obstacles? In attempting to answer that question we enter at once into a highly controversial field where we are all in danger of being misled by our political prejudices.

One can do no more than to state one's opinion for what it is worth. Mine is that the basic cause is to be found in the fact that the President returned from his South American trip with the conviction that it is his historic mission to "master" the capitalists by squeezing them between a powerful organized labor movement on the one side and a very powerful government on the other. This conviction was made manifest by the two spectacular events of last winter—the alliance of the President with organized labor and the proposal to pack the supreme court.

Net Effect

The net effect of the government's labor policy was drastically and suddenly to increase the costs of production. The figures, when one examines them, are really amazing. Toward the end of 1936 average hourly earnings in factories rose sharply and the average hours worked fell sharply. With the rise of prices checked by the deflationary policy of the government, with costs greatly increased in the key industries by its labor policy, the margin of profit which had seemed so attractive in the autumn of 1936 had been reduced, if not eliminated, by the spring of 1937. Men take risks in order to make profits and when they can not see profits they do not take risks.

Concurrently, the President set out to pack the supreme court, and this unhappy project was generally interpreted as signifying that he meant to remove the constitutional restrictions upon the political regulation of business. Thus to the diminishing prospects of private profit there was joined the threat of still more grandiose intervention by the government. The building industry, the utilities, and the railroads, the three chief channels of great private investment, were all of them caught in the pincers between the pressure of organized labor and the pressure of the new deal.

Investment did not take place. The recovery came to an end. Depression began.

This is, of course, to paint the picture with very broad strokes. But the picture is, I believe, the real picture as it is now seen in Washington by the President's most experienced advisers, perhaps even by the President himself.

If it is the true picture, then in order to avert a major depression, one relatively easy and one exceedingly difficult decision must be taken in Washington. The easy decision is to relax the deflationary policies of the treasury and the federal reserve board, in a word to have the government take in no more money for the time being than it gives out. Though for obvious reasons one hesitates to say it to this spendthrift administration, there is no doubt, I think, that in a depression a government ought not to have a net surplus. It should either spend a little more now or it should tax a little less.

But that will do no good whatever unless the difficult decision is taken simultaneously. The decision involves, to put it bluntly, reversing with whatever face-saving may be in order, the guiding principle of the new deal. It will be necessary to discard the new deal pincers. It will be necessary for Mr. Roosevelt to tell organized labor that certain wages, especially in the construction industry, are too high, and that certain hours are too short. And it will be necessary for him to satisfy investors that he has laid aside the purposes behind the attempt to pack the supreme court.

From such inquiries as I have made, I have no doubt that the leading new dealers now realize that unless such a reversal takes place promptly they will find themselves in a depression which will destroy them and their political power. Their present problem is to persuade the President, who is only half persuaded, that he must act at once, and the problem of persuading him is how to devise a formula which will enable him to reverse his course without losing too much face.

Apartment Bargain

... right here I want to say ... Daddy left all his ... Honey she's always ... an allowance from it. ... she'll want to go on ... use that toward a nice ...

Here her husband interrupted.

"That's one of the things, sweetheart. You can use your money for all the personal pretties you want, that's none of my business; but food, rent, living expenses that's little David's affair. Definitely Okay?"

"Of course, okay, darling," quickly. She had known he would feel that way really but it did seem—silly.

"And it won't include caviar for breakfast . or at any time, for that matter. We're poor, Nina. Fifty bucks a week means $50 a month for an apartment. It will seem like being a pauper to you But you knew it beforehand, didn't you?——Didn't you?"

His brown eyes were pleading.

"Oh, David. ." She got up and went over to him. Into his arms

"Oh, David. ."

But David's attitude was not one of humble, self-abasement. He wasn't making much now—but he was young, and would do better. Nina had cast in her lot with his, and there was nothing for either of them to feel sorry or ashamed about.

A Friend in McDuff

They took the first apartment they saw partly because it was a good bargain, and partly because the superintendent was such an engaging fellow

When he pushed open the door into the tiny, dark cubicle of a hall, and paused, dramatically David said, from the rear: "Lead on MacDuff!"

But the superintendent held his ground.

"Madam," he said, grandly, with a hand flourish, "you are now in the foyer!"

Well, that was right. Nina was—being in the middle But David was still half out in the outer vestibule, and their guide was bulging over into the parlor.

The elegantly named "foyer" was all of three by three

"Very nice," said Nina, graciously, and the man led on

There was a living-room—not a bad size really, and a smaller bedroom, and still even smaller kitchen, and a tinier than that bath.

Certain features that practically brought the tears to the superintendent's eyes, were the incinerator in the kitchen and a chandelier of many loops and coils in the center of the livingroom.

"Noo-veau art," he said, impressively, and made them stand and look at it.

The apartment was in a new elevator building between Lexington and Third, on 46th street

McDuff, the superintendent—his name really was McDuff—explained to them that these extremely spacious rooms, with their fine view of the court and the delivery entrance, so that there was a cross ventilation, usually rented for $90 a month; but since they absolutely refused to pay a cent more than $50 he was sure the owners would be willing to let it out, at that ridiculous low figure, on a month to month basis, just to have someone in it

That was to say, that the apartment would have to be open for inspection at all times, and that they would have to move out within the month, should tenants be found, willing to sign a lease at the higher figure.

Nina and David assimilated these acts, and decided it was worth the gamble.

"Confidentially speaking," said McDuff, in a stage whisper, "there's another apartment like this on the floor above. I'd do anything in my power to rent that first though it's $25 a month higher, on account of seeing over them there roofs in back."

It was evident that in McDuff they had found a friend.

They decided to take it.

They remained at the hotel for a few days, and moved in at the end of the week.

They made arrangements with "Blue," the janitor's tiny, black son at David's old rooming house, to go on caring for Button, the beagle, until they were installed in their new place.

In an excited, long distance conversation, Honey had insisted that Nina take her own bedroom furniture, so that that room, at least, was furnished , but they went at the rest of the apartment slowly and cautiously: David had $500 saved, and out of that they could buy things for the living-room.

Richard did go on his hunting trip, so that Nina saw only the servants when she went to the house on 74th St. with David She was thankful for that.

Cordelia was the only other person they saw that first week, and, although she certainly must have been astounded and chockfull of questions she was dear about it: just surprised enough and excited, and terribly happy, since Nina was She couldn't have been nicer

There was an announcement in the papers, and sundry remarks from the society columnists, but though the Challoner house was full of letters and flowers and lists of telephoned inquiries every time the Days went there, they did not see people They were honeymooning

The Blue And White Room

About the furnishing of the living-room, Nina had ideas.

"David darling, the bedroom is lovely, isn't it?"

"I'll say it is! We'll never be able to live up to it . . . I mean, the living-room is going to look silly."

"Well that's what I wanted to speak about, David. We can't afford very expensive stuff, or antiques, or anything, so why do we spend money on a lot of Grand Rapids furniture that we aren't going to like, after a while, anyway?"

"Are you suggesting that we go Japanese, my love, and sit about on the floor?"

"No . . . but listen . . ." And thus was evolved the quite lovely room that caused so much, and such widely diversified comment

The walls were a deep, bright blue (The reduced month to month rate did not include redecorating but by licking the pencil a bit they decided to spend the $25 and have that one room painted)

The walls, then, were a deep, bright blue The woodwork, pure white An inexpensive couch—a day-bed, really—and two, simple no-period, over-stuffed chairs were covered with slip covers of a matching rough, blue material. Along the side of the day-bed, up against the wall, were three fat white cushions; and with Bridget's help, Nina made heavy, white satin curtains that joined at the top of the windows, draped back, and fell in luscious folds to the floor.

On the mantle were two cheap, white pottery urns, with synthetic dogwood blooming beautifully against the blue walls; and a blue rug, two small walnut tables and as many straight-back chairs of simple design completed the setting.

David thought that Nina was nothing less than a genius, and hovered about with boyish awe and enthusiasm as production got under way.

It was a life saver for Nina that she had so much to do, and, of course, such a dear person to do it with. During the day, she refused to allow herself to think, and at night it was David who wouldn't allow her to.

If she thought anything, it was "I am doing the right thing," . . . over and over, "I am doing the right thing," and that in itself was comforting

The first night in their apartment they talked further about the things they could, and could not, do. With unusual foresight, David brought up an important point.

"Your friends, Nina are presumably going to want to throw a lot of parties for you . . . because they like you, and are probably dying with curiosity about the strange fellow you choose to marry . . . well, here's the thing: We simply can't get started going with a crowd like that, baby, because we'll have no possible way of returning invitations, and I'm no . . . what's that five-dollar word?.. sycophant.. We've got to take kind of a stand at the beginning. . . That okay, too?"

"Surely, it's okay. In fact, it's only common sense, David." Lord, that was what she wanted—to get away from her old ties, associations. And he was right.

"Let's choose a few of our best friends—like Cordelia Thorpe, and one or two of mine—and spend what money we have for amusements with them"

"Gosh, your sensibly, David."

"Gosh your—sweet!"

It was going to be awfully simple, getting along together.

Nina goes reluctantly with David to see Honey and Richard, tomorrow.

1938 HUDSON TERRAPLANE SEDAN

Three new 1938 Hudson automobiles, the Hudson Terraplane, the Hudson Six and the Hudson Eight, are now on display at the Wilson Motor Sales Co. at 209 North Main street. The prime guides of the engineers in developing the 1938 line were comfort, safety and performance with economy, according to the announcement of the manufacturers at Detroit.

The appearance of all three has been beautified by a new treatment of the front grille. The louvres are rounded and there is generous use of chromium, giving the cars the effect of fleetness and grace. Interiors have been treated in two-tone upholstery. In the front compartment the instrument panels are steel finished in mahogany and instruments are rearranged in chromium. Wider driving vision is also possible because of shifting of the front seat nearer the front of the car.

As to the mechanical features of the cars—the Eight is either on 128 or 122-inch wheelbase, the Six on 122 and the Terraplane on 117. All three have a 55-inch front compartment width. The selective automatic shift is optional on all cars. In this new device the gears eventually feel their way into proper engagement.

Engine refinements in the Hudsons have been made Connecting rods are heavier, metal mass weight is reduced in the vibration dampener and vibration is reduced, coil construction has been improved and additional moisture shields placed in the ignition system.

Other improvements come in the straight type muffler, the enlarged 12-plate clutch, strengthening of the chassis, increased leverage in the ride stabilizer, and various refinements in the electrical system. The battery is retained under the hood for convenience and roller-tooth steering adopted last year is continued

The eight cylinder motors have a compression ratio of 6.25 to 1 and develop 122 horsepower at 4,200 revolutions per minute. The new Six Star engine has the same compression ratio and develops 101 horsepower at 4,000 r.p.m. The Hudson Super-Terraplane six-cylinder engine with the same compression ratio develops 96 horsepower at 3,900 r.p.m.

The Wilson Motor Sales Co has in stock now the Terraplane brougham at $800 and the two-door sedan at $925, the Hudson Six brougham at $995 and the Hudson Eight brougham at $1,075. Other models are expected later.

Marriage Meddlers

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge and Dicky Are Welcomed to Farm by Their Parents and the Tigers.

IT WAS a small family, indeed, that came out from the farmhouse to welcome us home. My father, gallantly escorting Dicky's mother across the threshold; Mrs Tiger, hurrying after them, and Sam Tiger with his son, Jerry, coming around the corner of the house.

I recalled other homecomings when Junior and his cousin, Roderick, being raised as his brother, climbed upon the car doors before we could open them, when Katherine with Baby Faith in her arms stood smiling in the doorway; when Dicky's other orphaned nephews, Bill and Hank, grinned awkwardly from the background, when their sister, Mary, with Lillian's daughter, Marion, were just behind the small boys at the doors of the car; when the Underwoods, themselves, were looking after the two old people, and when instead of the Tigers, my tempestuous, faithful Katie and her stolid but equally faithful husband, Jim, were watching opportunities to serve us.

A wave of nostalgia went over me, for though the three younger children and Katherine would soon be home for the winter, and Jim and Katie would come back in a day or two, the rest I knew would be but birds of passage, lighting at the farm for a few brief hours before going on to school, to college, to careers.

I had no time, however, to indulge myself in sadness or any other emotion, for Jerry Tiger, with unusual quickness of movement—for he is usually as slow as his father, Sam, who could win a prize in a lethargy contest—was at my side of the car and had swung open the door and extended his hand to help me out.

"Well, you got here all right, I see," he said in an agony of shyness "Have any trouble?"

"Not a bit," I answered, as I extended my hand which he pumped up and down solemnly.

"Thank you so much for helping me," I said. "Will you please see to the luggage?"

"Yes, yes," he answered with the familiar mannerism I remembered so well.: "I sure will. Yes, yes."

I fairly ran around the car and up the steps, shaking Sam Tiger's outstretched hand as I passed, and then my father's arms went around me. As I had come up the steps I had seen the arms of Dicky's old mother lifted to encircle the neck of her son, and I knew that I was free for the moment to enjoy the reunion with my father to which I had so looked forward.

Recalls Rescue

I had not seen him since the awful night when Philip Veritzen's Quixote attempt at rescuing and ransoming the exiled queen of Transvania and her daughter had so nearly resulted in the loss of their lives, that of Noel, and of the greater share of Philip Veritzen's fortune.

When the fugitives were safely on board the Veritzen yacht, and Lillian, Mary and I had settled down to our work of caring for them, my father had taken Lillian's husband and mine with him to the pirate craft—my private mental designation for the sinister boat—bidding Lillian and me farewell, with the injunction not to worry about them—an ironic one to us. With the aid of the men on the government gunboat, he had taken the outlaw craft and its prisoners to the doom awaiting them.

He had but recently returned to the farmhouse, I knew, and after our first rapturous embrace, I put my hands on his shoulders and held him off at arms' length, while I scanned his dear face for the signs of fatigue and illness which I feared to find there.

But, to my joy, I saw no signs of illness Instead, he was looking unusually fit He never has permitted his body either to slump with age or to put on flesh, and though his recent gruelling experience had etched some extra lines in his face, his color was good. Indeed, he was positively bronzed, and his eyes were only a little less keen and brilliant than when years before he had found me, his long lost daughter, after a search which had given him the nickname of the "Quester of Broadway."

Voices Her Joy

"Oh!" I exclaimed with joy. "How well you are looking!"

"You are looking very fit yourself," he said. "And I am going to see to it that you do not overtax your strength again. You need a long rest here."

I opened my lips to tell him of the arrangement for me to go to the city and chaperone Mary, but closed them again. Time enough for that news when we should have time for talk by ourselves. Instinct told me that my captious mother-in-law would feel slighted if I took too long in greeting my father before coming over to her, and I dropped my hands from my father's shoulders, caught his hands into a playful grasp, and whispered, "Till later, Dearest."

Then I turned to my mother-in-law just in time to hear her say querulously:

"Well, Margaret! I wondered if you were ever going to remember that I am here, too."
